Locals volunteer in Katrina relief

By ROBERT FIGUCIA

WILMINGTON - "Devastation. Fun. Exhausting. Insane. Awesome. Dangerous. Rewarding." These words, which denote a full spectrum of emotions, describe the experiences for nine local teens that spent their 2006 Spring break in New Orleans working on hurricane relief efforts. The group, consisting of Wilmington and Tewksbury residents from Wilmington's First Baptist Church, traveled to New Orleans with six adult volunteers to spend an emotional and unforgettable week that has touched their lives forever. The trip began on Easter Sunday with a less-than-direct journey from Wilmington to Manchester Airport on to Chicago to Houston and finally to New Orleans. The trip offered plenty of time to get to know one another before the weary travelers squeezed into two SUVs for a late-night drive to "tent city," which would be home for the week. Their first

House-fire under investigation

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Police, along with State Troopers assigned to the Fire Marshall's Office, are investigating a house-fire that significantly damaged a home located at 11 Carter Lane on Wednesday night.

Fire crews responded to a call from a neighbor, which came in just after 10:00 p.m. on Wednesday, and arrived to visible flames. Once on the scene, firefighters were advised that an individual might still be in the building. Thermal imaging equipment, however, did not indicate that anyone was present.

Police found the homeowner in the woods approximately two hours after the fire began. He was transported to Lahey Clinic with minor injuries.

Police are planning to question the homeowner upon his release. According to town listings, the house is owned by Keith McConnell.

Wilmington's housing is hot

...and affordable

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Wilmington is garnering good press across the state in 2006.

According to the MIT Center for Real Estate, Wilmington is one of the most affordable towns in the Boston area.

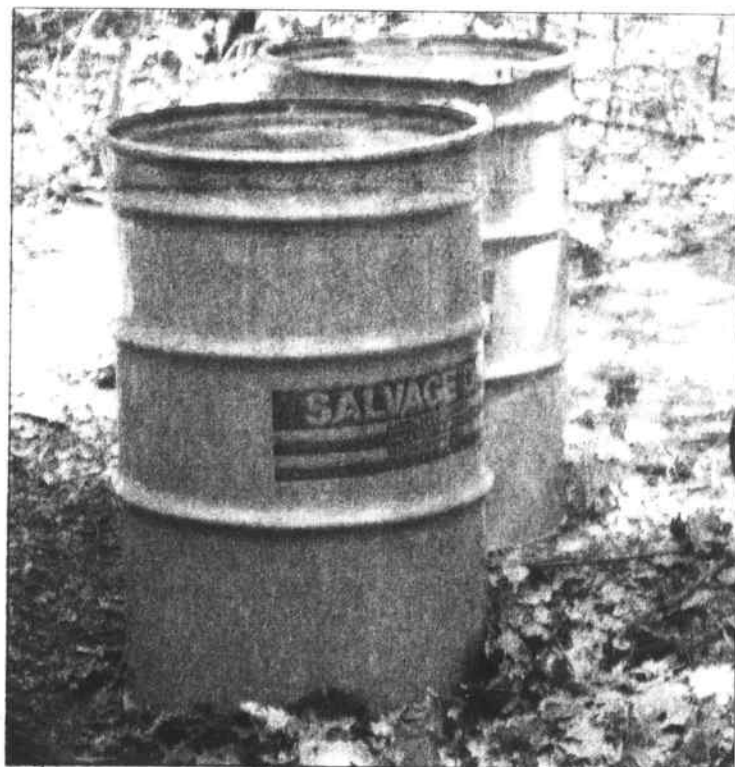

But that's not all.

The Boston Business Journal recently identified Wilmington as one of the hottest spots in the state in terms of real estate sales.

The housing affordability index released by the MIT Center for Real Estate on May 25th ranks 142 communities in the Boston area. The study is not limited just to price listings, but takes into

The opposite of... Proper disposal

Industrial waste abandoned

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - It's best not to arrange for the disposal of industrial hazardous waste with someone you've met in a bar, and whom you know only by first name. That is an important lesson recently learned the hard way by the owner of a defunct North Reading-based machine shop.

Six 55-gallon drums were found abandoned in a small wooded area between 65 and 69 Park Street on Thursday afternoon. According to Town Manager Michael Cairra, a resident alerted town officials to the situation.

"Selectman Michael Newhouse received a call from someone who spotted the drums while driving by. Mr. Newhouse immediately phoned my office and I directed the DPW to investigate," Cairra said. "We expected to find empty barrels."

The barrels were not empty, however.

Though DPW personnel did not open the barrels, but it was Dedicated to Wilmington's fallen

This is the second part of a two-part series featuring Wilmington's Memorials dedicated to its veterans.

By CHARLEY VALLAS

WILMINGTON - To some, it simply means a 3-Day weekend, or a break from work, or a shortened school week. To others, it marks the beginning of the summer tourist season that runs until Labor Day. To some, it means it's time to put the boat in the water or open the camp, time to fire up the grill and have that first cookout of the season. To some, it means Tee times at the golf course, or baseball games, camping, parades, the beach, fishing, cold beer and visiting with the family. All of those are common and legitimate Memorial Day activities and traditions, albeit none of those mentioned carry the intent of Memorial Day.

Today's society demands fast paced lives and people often take their freedom, and so much more, for granted. Those families who have lost a loved one to war need no reminder. However, many of those not directly affected do need a reminder - and it is called Memorial Day.

(The following introduction, and much of the historical information that follows, has been culled from Paul Chalfour's book, "Wilmington: A Celebration of Our Times," which is available for purchase at the Wilmington Town Hall for $5.00. Mr. Chalfour is credited with all quoted material in this article.)

"Wherever conflict and tyranny may arise, the call to arms of Wilmington's men and women has never gone unanswered. In 1676 one of the first settlers to the area that would become Wilmington, Sergeant Abraham Jaquith, was one of forty 'troopers and dragoons' sent to scout the area of Groton, Lancaster, and Marlborough. Wounded during this, King Phillip's War, Jaquith finally succumbed to his injury in 1679. In 1778, Minuteman Jacob Flint died during the Battle for Rhode Island at Quaker Hill. In one of the bloodiest battles ever fought on American soil, Theodore S. Butters was wounded at Gettysburg on July 3rd 1863. A corporal in Company I, 2nd Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, twenty-year old Butters died on July 30th. He is buried at the battlefield's cemetery. Marine Sergeant Charles L. Smith made his final stand on the South Pacific island of Guadalcanal, having fallen there on September 14th 1942.

For more than three centuries we have enjoyed the right to gather and celebrate our past accomplishments, the things that make our town unique. We go forward, sometimes taking this right for granted, not realizing the sacrifices that have been made before us. In times of war, uncertainty abounds and tight knit communities often become closer. Wilmington is one such a community. A community where a call to duty has always been answered. A community where the ultimate sacrifice has too often been made, each time without hesitation. In special places throughout our town, the pale green patina of time has stained the monuments to our heroes of yesterday. Their stories are explained here in hopes that their service and the service of others not so memorialized will never be forgotten.

Richard W. Welch Memorial at Main Street and Bridge Lane

Deployed in May of 1965 the 173rd Airborne Brigade was the first major ground force engaged in operations in Vietnam. Serving continuously for the next six years, the longest of any unit, it achieved peak strength of 3,000 soldiers while suffering over 1,700 combat deaths during its deployment. One such casualty was PFC Richard Welch, who had begun his tour with the 173rd in January of 1968. As an infantryman, PFC Welch was killed in action by small arms fire during an ambush while on patrol in the Quang Due Province on September 12th, 1968. He was to have turned nineteen on September 27th, making him one of Wilmington's youngest casualties of any war.

Martin J. Nee Memorial at

Burlington Avenue and Marion Street
On December 6th 1917 the 1150-ton Tucker Class destroyer USS Jacob Jones was cutting through the icy waters of the North Atlantic southeast of the Isles of Scilly. The waters were far from being safe and placid, but having conducted numerous convoy escorts and anti-submarine patrols she was familiar with her area of operation. Based at the naval station in Queenstown, Ireland the Jacob Jones had made numerous forays into the Atlantic in search of the Kaiser's U-boats. However, on this fateful winter day while returning to Queenstown from Brest France, Captain Hans Rose, commander of U-53 surprised the brave crew. Slamming a torpedo into her starboard side, Captain Rose struck a fatal blow when the ship's fuel oil bunkers ruptured and exploded. Ironically, as the Jacob Jones' stern settled into the sea her depth charges, Representative Miceli encourages all the residents and business in Tewksbury and Wilmington that were affected by the flooding to set up an appointment to discuss options with the disaster specialists. If you need assistance setting up an appointment please contact the representative's office at (617)722-2582.

"Disaster victims are urged to register for assistance before visiting a Disaster Recovery Center by calling 1-800-621-FEMA (3362). The TTY number is 1-800-462-7585 for those who are speech - or hearing impaired. Registration can also be done online at www.fema.gov," stated MEMA Director Cristine McCombs. "Those that have questions, regardless of where they live, are welcome to visit any center to meet with recovery specialists in person. These Disaster Recovery Centers allow people the opportunity to receive answers to their many questions and obtain information regarding the myriad of programs that are available."

Chairman Miceli and his colleagues have filed a joint order in the Senate to establish a Committee on Rain Storm and Flood Recovery. The special joint committee will work to advocate on behalf of the communities and residents affected by the flood, research develop and draft legislation to supplement to the extent necessary federal assistance provided to the commonwealth, residents and businesses.

"The Merrimack Valley was devastated by this natural disaster," Miceli said. "I will work with the administration, the federal government and my colleagues to ensure that the area is able to fully recover from this event. I strongly encourage those affected to contact the Disaster Relief Centers for assistance. Of course, my office is always available as a resource to those in need, (617)722-2582."

SELF-LEASING

Does your company lease some of its equipment or its real estate? About 8 out of 10 companies do. If it's your business, consider leasing the equipment or real estate yourself.

There are a number of advantages. First, it protects the equipment from business creditors. Also, leasing provides a tax deduction for the primary business—and a good financing arrangement.

There are estate tax opportunities, too. Instead of owning the equipment or real estate yourself, consider setting up an LLC or trust to own the property, gifting interests in the LLC or trust to family members, presumably those in lower tax brackets. The net leasing income goes to owners of the LLC or trust. If, in time, the property is sold, any gains are taxable to individuals rather than to the company and then to its shareholders.

Of course, any leasing arrangements must be carefully structured to meet tax rules. Let a professional set up the leasing deal.

When you need professional know-how, you need the professionals at:

Shock and Awe in Suburbia or Fear Factor, Tewksbury Style

Letters to the editor

The Wilmington Police Officers

The officers in Wilmington
Are generous, giving and fair.
And we the seniors thank you
Knowing how much you care;

You give us entertainment
Snacks and food galore,
You do so much for all of us
We couldn't ask for more;

We feel so protected
That we just want to say,
Thanks again from our hearts
Thanks again from Deming Way.

Jean Hanley
Resident of Deming Way in Wilmington

Veterans credit checks

Dear Editor,
If the Veteran's Administration is so concerned about our credit checks, they would provide a free credit check every three months for the next two years.

Town of Tewksbury

Elks appreciated

Dear Editor,
Please accept this letter of appreciation to the Tewksbury Wilmington Lodge of Elks #2070 for their most recent donation to the Tewksbury Community Pantry in the amount of $750.00.

The Tewksbury community should know that the Tewksbury Wilmington Lodge of Elks has been a long term and steady supporter of our local pantry. Time and again, when the pantry is in need, the local lodge always is there to help out. Without reliable and consistent support from the Elks, and other civic organizations, the pantry would not be able to meet the monthly food supply needs of the 120 households in town presently served. The pantry is pleased to consider the Elks a partner in our ongoing effort to assist those less fortunate in Tewksbury.

Sincerely,
Todd Johnson
Chair
Tewksbury

Great care from Tewksbury Hospital

Dear Editor,
I am a retired town worker. I live in elderly housing. This February I lost my right leg to diabetes. For years I have heard people bad mouthing Tewksbury Hospital. I just spent five months there. I want people to know what wonderful care I got.

Loneliness was my biggest problem. I got really depressed. That is where the staff came through. They taught me how to walk again on my prosthesis. They got me interested in living. The Adult Dare Care Program brought me out of depression.

I am back home now. I just want people to know what a great place Tewksbury Hospital is for town people like me who are old with health problems.

Robert K. Howard
Tewksbury

As a general rule, I dislike paying taxes. All too often I disagree with the philosophy and methodology of redistributing my income and I'd rather have much more say, and direct interest, in the outcome of my disbursements. Suffice it to say, I often have opinions on where, and for whom, my money is spent. Yes, taxes are what we pay for a civilized society, I'm not a libertarian. But, I want my money spent largely on two things, indivisible goods and public education.

Foregoing the inevitably pedantic economics dissertation, indivisible goods cannot be measured individually for the good or service provided. National Defense is a classic example of an indivisible good since none of us can in any way seriously measure the individual costs and benefits of having a defense.

Much the same stands true for public education. Failing to properly educate our children means we're just breeding kids unable to take over the reigns of national leadership when their turn comes. Properly educating our kids means, in part, moving with the times. A debate rages in Tewksbury about the merits and pitfalls of two articles in the upcoming election June 10.

One article seeks funding for new desks and computers in the high school, two areas in such need that the New England Association of Schools and Colleges cited them in its Fall 2005 accreditation visit. "The school's equipment has not been replaced when needed, primarily with regard to the aging, slow, and inadequate computers and the aging furniture that in part dates to the opening of the school in 1959. Some classroom chairs are disfigured and some classroom desks are broken apart or held together with strong tape."

Last year's override for additional funding to rectify these problems, lost by only 8 votes at the polls and indicates a bigger problem than simple lack of funds. Apathy.

I blame much of this lack of interest on the advent of the reality television show.

Seriously. These "reality" shows are incredibly popular with Americans so interested in escaping their own realities they prefer to watch horribly contrived situations and see what "normal" people do to get through it all. Finally, we have entered Richard Connell's Most Dangerous Game, turning to hunting our own species for entertainment. While I'm all for escapism and television programming, I'm afraid that culturally we've left the national controls to spin willy nilly while we munch microwave popcorn and debate the finer points of Fear Factor.

We must ask ourselves what we want our children to accomplish in school. So often in this debate I read or hear about residents that find themselves so nonplussed with the town budgets and management that they plan to vote against these school articles June 10 as a punishment to local town officials. Or others that feel they got along just fine without computer classes, fine arts, and modern desks (the old ones were just fine, built tough), so why should kids today benefit at cost to taxpayers.

Well, partly because we have a rich cultural tradition in America for public education. We believe that educating a child not only benefits that child and parents but society at large. By not fully and properly advocating public education we do our children a disservice in the short term and everyone a disservice in the long run. This does not mean throwing good money after bad. However, if we educate ourselves as taxpayers, parents and residents and watch what our elected officials do with our money, surely then we will know better how to help manage Tewksbury's schools.

Every year since 2003 the Town refused School Department requests for a bigger budget resulting in a levelly funded school system over the last three years. Much of the blame for the tight spot we're in is often attributed to a decrease in Chapter 70 and other funds from the state. This is largely true; Romney cut many wasteful programs in the budget and cut back on others. For me though, I'd rather pay lower state taxes and higher property taxes.

With property taxes you actually live in the town the money supports. Residents elect the people responsible for budgeting and spending that money. When money is unwisely spent, voters may put that person out of office. The accountability makes real sense.

So I leave you with this, I ask nothing more than that instead of apathy, residents vote next weekend, June 10. I ask that you consider the merits of each article, encourage your neighbors, and come out that day. By not participating in this election we bring a reality upon ourselves far scarier than Fear Factor.

The Family Therapist

by Anthony Ferrara

The loss of respect

Without respect from others we lose our sense of pride in ourselves. This is especially true with our loved ones. Respect should begin with the family. Parents who respect each other set the expectation of respect. Without it there is no support or unity. Parents who respect each other set the code of respect. Too often, parents forget this code when they allow their children to be disrespectful. In most cases parents are blinded by their love for the child. They rationalize by making excuses. "Children will be children, it's only a passing phase, and expressing themselves is important." In the mean time they are allowing their children to develop bad habits that could affect their lives. When parents lose control of their children they also lose their respect. Children want to identify with the strength of their parents rather than with weakness.

Parents get a clearer picture when they realize their acceptance of their child's negative acts would never be tolerated by the outside world. One of my clients thought it was funny when his eight-year-old son squirted water in his face.

Can you imagine what would happen if he did this to another adult? There is a good chance that he will. After all, it pleased his dad. Parents should always ask themselves: "Would a stranger accept this behavior?" Parents do the child a great injustice when they don't prepare him for the outside world.

Children have a tendency to test their parents. Defiance, non-conformance, and ridicule are common. These actions can easily be nipped in the bud. If they are allowed to continue, they will escalate to a serious situation. Testing can start by calling parents jerks, or "no that was pretty stupid, no I will not do what you ask." Some parents feel these words are acceptable. After all, children must express themselves. However, this could be the beginning of more unacceptable language. Children should be able to express themselves, but in an acceptable manner, never cursing or raising their voices. Some parents know it's wrong but are fearful of losing their child's love.

These defiant actions must be dealt with immediately and properly. It could make the difference of your child being an acceptable human being or one who turns off his fellow man. Raising and directing our children can be our greatest challenge.

The disrespect of so many of today's children makes us realize there is a problem. We hear less of the comforting words, please, thank you, and sir or ma'am. They are being replaced by "f-k-you, shove it," and "get off my back". Some of the most abused are parents and grandparents. Too often do we read of family members being beaten and killed by their own young.

These parents have lost most of their controlling discipline tools. Disciplining has become a confusing dilemma. What will be effective? What is too severe? What would be legally acceptable? A strong reprimand could now be verbal abuse. Physically restraining your child to prevent harm to him or others could label you an abusive parent. All these punishments worked in the past. Just knowing he would be punished prevented many a child from misbehaving.

Parents can still be effective by choosing deterrents more carefully. Find out what means the most to your child. It could be restricting his friends over to the house. The loss of TV, computer, video games, or denying a special event can be effective. Hitting will only bring on anger and resentment toward the perpetrator. This could cause a minor situation to escalate. Use whatever works but is not abusive.

If fear can help teach respect and give our children a better life, let us use it. It should not be the fear of being hit. If they know they will be grounded or deprived of luxuries they will conform. Consistency each and every time is a must. Always be aware that creating fear without love could lead to abuse. Fear is the most effective tool for one country over another to prevent war. It has prevented much unnecessary blood shed. If Iran didn't fear retaliation from Israel and the United States, they would already have used their weapons of mass destruction. Such a tool should be used to help our children develop properly.

Parents have a lifetime of work, heartaches, and frustrations raising children. They deserve their children's love, but most of all their respect.

Missing Badge
Hi, I am Melanie Somerville from the Heath Brook School. I played Col. Francis Smith in the Patriotic Play which was in April. I lost the Metal off my uniform on our march up Shawsheen St from the Heath Brook School to the Trahan School in Tewksbury. The badge is green and gold and says Kn. Fe. If you find it on Shawsheen St please return it to the Heath Brook School to Mr. Marcus, the gym teacher of the Heath Brook School.

Lasers

Lasers are everywhere in business and medicine. They are used for surgical procedures, to get rid of that tattoo of your last girlfriend, for facial scars, hair removal, and in our office, for skin healing. Lasers have become a "hot" topic for many questions regarding types and uses. My husband, also a fellow chiropractor, was the first in our office to bring up the benefits of laser for joint and musculoskeletal healing therapies. Initially, my reaction was filled with skepticism. So we were asked to borrow a low level laser for one month of trial tests on patients. After our initial training on patients with the low level laser therapy (LLLT) I was surprised and elated at the positive results it showed in advanced healing time - so much so that we have since added the laser to our healing modalities. The technical science behind laser as a healing therapy was a bit confusing at first. I needed to revisit early classes to rediscover lightwaves in order to fully understand the concept. Thus, research ensued.

But surprisingly, many of my patients had similar questions; one of the funniest of which ended in zapping unwanted fat at the same time I helped with joint pain. I began to delve into the differences, and there were many. Each type of laser possesses varying characteristics including frequency and wavelength to perform their specific functions.

All light has wavelengths, measured in nanometers. The visible spectrum of light - what we see with our eyes - falls within the 400 to 700 nanometer (nm) range. Below this range is considered ultraviolet rays, whereas, beyond 700 nm falls within the infrared spectrum.

Laser is our most advanced use of light sources. The word is an acronym for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. Laser generates pure light, or light with a single wavelength, unlike visible colors, with different wavelengths. Laser light is highly organized and focused. To get a better idea of laser versus regular light picture it this way. You may remember watching it on television or conducting the scientific experiment yourself. By using the sun's rays and a magnifying glass, we are able to take waves of sunlight and focus its energy onto a specific object, say an ant - not that I did this in the name of pediatric scientific research. The sunlight alone probably won't fry an egg, but concentrate that light energy through the magnifying glass and voila...egg sandwich. To delve deeper would be to open a can of scientific worms that would take a whole semester to relearn. But in other words, laser light is highly ordered, well organized and coherent - emitting light waves so nearly parallel that they can travel long distances without spreading. Therefore this light can be focused with great precision.

Depending on the wavelength of the light, measured in nanometers, also depends upon the focus of the light and depth of penetration. There are many different types of lasers available today, ranging from high powered to lower level lasers. The therapeutic range of lasers run in the near infrared of 630 to 905 nanometer (nm) range versus the high powered surgical CO2 lasers of 10000 nm. For our purposes, we will focus within these ranges.

The high-powered lasers are used for surgically-based procedures. These lasers have a large wavelength and fall far within the infrared spectrum, making them thermic, or heat generating. These lasers are used to cut, coagulate and evaporate tissues. They are often called surgical lasers because the light is so concentrated it can replace the scalpel.

The second classification of "medical" lasers is low-level laser. These lasers differ from high-powered lasers in that they have shorter wavelengths, so not to focus the light so much to break tissue, but to stimulate cell function. These lasers fall within the "therapeutic window" of the light spectrum. Their biological effect is not to emit heat (athermic) as with surgical lasers, giving them the name cold lasers, but rather stimulate tissue repair via biostimulation. These lasers perform a wide range of functions from dermatological to musculoskeletal issues due to their tissue healing capabilities.

The theory of the laser was initially described in 1917 by that smart chap Albert Einstein, who opened the door into further research and development of the laser. The first laser, known as the ruby laser for its ruby crystal source of light, was developed in 1960. This invention paved the way for further advancements and by the early to mid-1960s lasers were being used in surgical procedures. Ophthalmology was the first medical specialty to use the intense photon density of the pure beam of laser energy to induce photothermal effects which were capable of welding detached retinas, selectively coagulating small blood vessels on the retina, and removing abnormally colored cutaneous lesions without damaging surrounding normal tissues. This was the birth of laser surgery.

Further advancements in lasers were discovered soon after. In 1968 a Hungarian clinician and scientist, Professor Endre Mester, published a paper on a non-surgical application of laser in many cases that were otherwise unsuccessfully treated using conventional therapies. This was the birth of laser therapy.

Low-level lasers supply energy to the body in the form of non-thermal light energy (photons). Light is transmitted through the skin's layers (the dermis, epidermis and the subcutaneous tissue or tissue fat under the skin) at all wavelengths in the visible range. However, light waves in the near infrared ranges penetrate the deepest of all light waves in the visible spectrum. Due to its athermic nature, when applying low level lasers, the subject should feel nothing at all.

At the tissue level, it has been shown that laser light irradiation results in increased collagen and epithelial cell (cells that cover most of the outer and inner layers of our body) production as well as the synthesis of new capillaries and an increase in density of the capillary bed. Reductions in scar tissue formation and keloid adhesions also occur. A reduction of pain and inflammation results from this treatment, as does the stimulation of nerve regeneration, and muscle relaxation.

Our initial test studies have been very positive in post-surgical recovery, wound healing and disc injury patients. I have had one chronic torticollis (in which muscles are in a constant contracted or shortened state) patient who has experienced tremendous muscle relaxation from the laser therapy. These therapeutic lasers have been shown to speed up the healing process of post-injury and surgical patients by forty percent. Other known benefits of low level laser therapy include: wound healing, arthritis, migraines, repetitive stress injuries, carpal tunnel syndrome, tendonitis, fibromyalgia, sprains/strains, tennis and golfer's elbow, temporomandibular joint problems (TMJ), soft tissue injuries, swelling, burns and pressure sores.

LLLT has been thoroughly tested and proven effective in most countries of the world, including England, Italy, Japan and Canada. In these, as well as other countries, it is a well accepted and recommended form of treatment and has been for years. It has only been within the last few years that the FDA has approved LLLT for therapeutic use in the U.S.

Just remember, a laser hair removal laser will not heal tendon tears and post-surgical wounds, as their set wavelengths will differ depending upon the intended target of care. So our laser will aid in healing your carpal tunnel and arthritis but you can't get permanent hair removal...no more questions about that.

State Police Respond to fatal crash on Route 93 in Wilmington

WILMINGTON - On Monday, May 29, 2006 at about 6:10 p.m., State Police from the Andover Barracks responded to a one car crash on Route 93 North, north of Route 125, in Wilmington.

Preliminary investigation by Trooper Bryan Erickson indicates that 28-year-old Mark F. Avery of Lawrence was traveling on Route 93 North in a 2002 Ford Taurus when he lost control of his vehicle, causing it to strike the left side guard rail. The vehicle then traveled over the guardrail and rolled over in the median. Mr. Avery was unbelted at the time of the crash.

Mr. Avery was flown by Med

Flight helicopter to Brigham and Women's Hospital where he was subsequently pronounced dead.

The cause of this crash remains under investigation with the assistance of the State Police Collision Analysis and Reconstruction Section (CARS), State Police Crime Scene Services, Wilmington Fire and EMS, Wilmington Police, Andover Fire and EMS all assisted at the scene.

Route 93 North was closed for about 45 minutes to accommodate the helicopter. The two right travel lanes were then opened for traffic. All travel lanes were reopened at about 8:00 p.m.

Two Wilmington High students named $5,000 McKeown Scholars

Lauren McDonagh and Stephanie Parker win $10,000 total

WILMINGTON - Wilmington High School has named Wilmington residents Lauren McDonagh of Thrush Road and Stephanie Parker of Kilmarnock Street as this year's McKeown Scholars. Each graduating high school student will receive a $5,000 merit scholarship to be applied to the four-year college or university of her choice.

The following essays were written by this year's Wilmington winners. As part of the competition, sponsored by Woburn-based Cummings Foundation and not-for-profit New Horizons at Choate retirement community, students were required to write a timed essay on a topic not disclosed until the time the essay was written. Submissions were then number coded and anonymously evaluated by Wilmington High English department volunteers. Essays served as the "first cut" criteria to identify finalists in the 10-year-old competition.

Winners were determined from the group of finalists based upon overall essay quality, application packets, community service record, outstanding reputation, a personal interview, and other stated criteria. School officials reported that out of 47 eligible students, 40 students participated in the program this year at Wilmington High. The program was also available to all Wilmington residents who are high school seniors graduating in the top 20 percent of their respective secondary schools.

The McKeown Scholars Program was established in 1996 in memory of Woburn native James L. McKeown. Late president of Cummings Properties, Mr. McKeown was well-known throughout the Boston area for his mild manner, strong reputation for fairness and integrity, and far-reaching efforts to expand opportunities for local youth. He was also known as the chief catalyst in bringing Cummings Properties to the city of Beverly to purchase and renovate the massive former United Shoe Machinery complex, now Cummings Center.

Mr. McKeown died unexpectedly of heart failure in 1996 at the age of 41, while running near his home in Winchester, where he lived with his wife Denise and two young daughters, Molly and Kelly. Following his death, the city of Beverly dedicated the James L. McKeown Elementary School, and Woburn honored him with the naming of the James L. McKeown Memorial Interchange over I-93.

This year's essay topic was as follows:

Evaluate a risk you have taken, or ethical dilemma you have faced, and its impact on you. What led to this occurrence in your life, how did you address it, and how did it affect you as a developing person?

Seventeen, three thousand miles from Wilmington, and homeless; this is the state I found myself in for the last two weeks of July 2005. I had gone on a trip. Initially, it had seemed like the perfect idea for summer vacation. Managing to pack two weeks' worth of clothing into a small backpack, my friend Rachel and I boarded a plane and headed across the country to visit a friend from middle school in Los Angeles. The plan was to remain at her home for two weeks, and then fly home.

It was simple, fool-proof even. The trouble came when after staying in my friend's home for only three days, Rachel and I went to visit a distant cousin we had never met and our friend's mother abruptly announced that we could not come back to her house. She even went as far to claim she had no idea who we were. The details of her reasons for kicking us out are numerous and contradictory, and even now, seven and a half months later, still do not know the honest reason behind her decision. The one thing I do know is that for one reason or another, it happened, and we found ourselves in the small town of Upland, California, about an hour into the desert west of Los Angeles. We were with distant family who themselves were leaving for vacation the next day. And between us there was only about two hundred dollars, not nearly enough for a week and a half's stay in a hotel. It was time to make a decision. We could either suck it up, pay the airlines an additional nine hundred dollars a piece to move our flight up and head home defeated, having spent about three months pay on a single weekend gone awry. Or, we could put our heads together and try to figure out a place to stay for the next week and a half.

A cell phone is a wonderful tool, and I have never appreciated mine more than I did that weekend. I started calling everyone I knew, friends, extended family, anyone who might be able to know someone in the area. Eventually, I found what I was looking for, the sister of my aunt's ex-husband lived half an hour south of the city. We talked for a while, explaining our stressful situation, and she said that we could go stay at her home for a few days. I thanked her, hung up the phone, and Rachel and I prepared for our journey. It was a half hour walk to the train station and an hour train ride into Los Angeles, during which time I had to talk my way out of being arrested because, unbeknownst to the MBTA passenger that I typically am, all transit tickets must be purchased before boarding the train in California. From here it was another half hour train ride, and another two mile walk, before the move from San Bernardino County to Orange County was complete.

We ended up staying a few days in this woman's home, a few days in the home of friends of my best friend's mother, and then finally a night in the home of my Uncle's ex-wife's new husband's sister. It was stressful and scary and, sad to say, dangerous in today's world, but I am honestly glad that I took the risk, and persuaded Rachel to stay for the next two weeks because my little adventure taught me quite a few things about life.

The first thing I learned that is regardless of the scare-tactic propaganda that is used to increase TV news ratings, people are essentially good and kind. Politeness and a show of sincere thanks still is enough in the day and age. The people we stayed with were only distantly connected to us. They were under no obligation to help us, especially when the sacrifice was as large as letting two teenage girls they had never met stay at their homes for a night or two. Growing up in this society, I had come to assume that no one really had any interest in helping any one else without expecting something in return. Turns out, I was wrong.

I also learned a lot about myself. I know feel confident about moving off to college in another part of the country this autumn. I do not need my parents to come to my rescue every time something goes wrong. I am perfectly capable of using logic and whatever tools are at my disposal to find a solution to any problem, regardless of how impossible it may at first seem. I am not afraid to ask for help nor am I incapable of making the best of a bad situation.

The final thing this trip taught me was how little I know about the world. Los Angeles is the literal embodiment of America's "melting pot". At any given crowded area, one is bound to hear at least six other languages. On one corner you may find Thai food, on another Greek, and on still another Mexican. Every kid of sub-culture is represented in the city. I have lived my life in an area where that is not at all the case. I was never naive to the fact that most of the country does not live the same life I do, but I was never fully aware of how different it could get. This inspired in my a new desire to travel as much as I possibly can. I now want to see as much as I possibly can, and experience as much as I possibly can. I have live on this planet for nearly eighteen years, and I know nothing. I only hope that during the next fifty or so years I am able to use my time wisely enough to scratch the surface of all that the world has to offer.

Perhaps staying in California was a dumb risk. So much could have gone wrong, and I am thankful that I returned home safely. Regardless, I would not take back my decision for the world. Those two weeks were my first real taste of life beyond Boston's northern suburbs, and I will carry the things that I experienced with me for the rest of my life.

A Risk Worth Taking

The lives of human beings are filled with choices, ranging from simplistic selections to ones that tear at the heart and bring anguish to the soul. Though it is often appealing to travel the safer path, the truest treasures and lessons in life cannot be found without first taking a risk. An individual must step out of his shell in order to experience all that the world has to offer, regardless of any past wounds or memories that may be calling him back. In my life, my most significant risk was not one of physical courage; I did not place my life in jeopardy or come close to bodily harm. Instead, I risked something that I consider far more fragile: my capacity for trust.

A month into my freshman year of high school and a few days after my fifteenth birthday, my father walked out on me, my mother, and my younger brother. We were caught completely by surprise, and I distinctly remember being overcome by overwhelming sensations of helplessness. The family I had cherished had been irreparably damaged and the future suddenly seemed dark and uncertain. At that moment, I made a decision to close off my heart; I never again wanted to be betrayed and hurt so deeply. The trust I had once held for a man who was supposed to be my provider and supporter was destroyed; I laughed bitterly at the charade he had managed to keep up for so many years. I also saw the deception that my mother endured, and her pain made me more determined to protect my weakened spirit. As the weeks and months passed, my family adjusted to the new normalcy that had been forced upon us and began to move forward with the support of others. During this time, I also began corresponding regularly with a young man from my world history class. He was unlike other students I knew; he seemed to possess a maturity that placed him far beyond his years. Moreover, he was also struggling with his own heartaches, and, in the midst of tragedy, we found confidantes in one another. Before long, we were talking for hours a day and truly exploring the depths of each other's personalities. As our relationship grew, however, so too did my fears of being hurt once again.

By the time freshman year was drawing to a close, my suitor was naturally curious as to the status of our relationship, but I was unsure if I could ever place my trust in the hands of another man. I also realized I must not set my friend up to impossible standards; we were only fifteen, and romances at that age are frequently transient in nature. My heart was torn between affection and security, and I spent many nights questioning my options amid the darkened shadows of my bedroom. At long last, I mentally was able to arrive at a place where I could recognize the foolishness of sheltering my heart. I finally saw that I could not live without ever risking emotional pain, and I realized that often the value of an experience lies not in how it ends, but in what it gives to you as you pass through life.

In the end, I risked my heart and I gingerly extended my trust, and, three years later, I can wholeheartedly say that I have no regrets. I am still dating that young man from history class, and we have continued to lean on each other as our lives have grown and changed. More importantly, I have learned to let go of my old wounds and not let myself be defined or controlled by my previous pains. I have struggled with my heart, and I have triumphed. I know now that I am ready for the future and whatever it may bring.

Tarr's amendment to the Senate budget supports community policing

BOSTON - Senate Minority Whip Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) said recently that he was successful in securing a provision to maintain funding levels for Community Policing in the proposed FY' 07 Senate Budget for Community Policing in the Commonwealth. The amendment that was approved by the Senate last evening during budget deliberations would insure that no community in the Commonwealth will receive a grant in FY' 07 that is less than the amount the community received in FY' 06.

Community Policing Grants are essential to communities throughout the Commonwealth to promote crime education and prevention. Through this funding local police departments can form, maintain, and strengthen partnerships with community organizations, neighborhoods, schools and citizens to prevent crime through a variety of activities.

Tarr offered a similar amendment in the FY' 06 budget guaranteeing that no police department received less funding for community policing in Fiscal Year 2006 than it did in Fiscal Year 2003.

"Community policing activities bring together officers and residents for the common purpose of making our communities safer," said Tarr, who serves as the ranking minority member on the Public Safety and Homeland Security Committee. "Without state support, however, they are often limited due to tight municipal budgets. The passage of this amendment signals the support of the Senate for the good work that local law enforcement officials are doing every day on our main streets, in our schools and in our neighborhoods."

Tarr's amendment ensures funding for this grant program enhancing public safety thought the development of collaborative efforts between police departments, local government agencies businesses, schools, community organizations and citizens. Since its inception in 1994, the program has increased from 34 participating communities to 341 communities across the Commonwealth in FY' 04.

Tarr thanked Senate Ways and Means Committee Chair Therese Murray (D-Plymouth) for her leadership and for recognizing the need for this amendments inclusion in the committees FY'07 spending document.

A conference committee comprised of 6 members of the House and Senate will soon begin working to reconcile differences between the two branches FY' 07 budget proposals. A final conference committee report will then move to the desk of Governor Romney for his approval.

account each community's schools, municipal services, open spaces, accessibility to jobs, and a number of other factors.

"By focusing on area affordability, we recognize that the price of a house is affected by its location since this price includes the value of the services provided by the local amenities," MIT's housing affordability index states in its introduction. "The goal of affordable housing policy should be to not only provide suitable structure for households, but also to supply units that are accessible to jobs, are in safe areas, and have decent schools."

Dracut was determined to be the most affordable community in the study overall, followed by Woburn. Wilmington ranked 37th and Tewksbury 51st in the overall findings, but Wilmington fared even better as a community affordable to 4-person households.

Wilmington was ranked 2nd, just behind Avon, as a community affordable to 4-person households earning 80 percent of the area's median income. A 4-person household bringing in an income of $79,000 annually is at 80 percent of the area's median income level. Similarly, 80 percent of the area's median income for a 2-person household is $57,000.

The housing index lists 50.7 percent of Avon's total housing stock, and 47 percent of Wilmington's total housing stock, as affordable to 4-person households earning 80 percent of the median income, but Avon has far fewer housing units within its community.

According to MIT's housing affordability index, Wilmington has 7,583 units of housing stock, with 3,561 units, considered affordable to 4-person households earning 80 percent of the median income. Avon has a total housing stock of only 1,754 units, with 889 of those considered affordable to 4-person households.

Tewksbury came in third for 4-person household affordability with 46.4 percent of its total housing stock, followed by Billerica in sixth place with 45.2 percent, Dracut in eighth place with 45.2 percent, and Burlington in 10th place with 44 percent.

At the same time that Wilmington fared well in the MIT Center for Real Estate housing affordability index, the Boston Business Journal named Wilmington as one of the hottest spots in the Greater Boston area for real estate sales in a softening market.

Wilmington was ranked fourth in first quarter sales, and was in good company behind Boston waterfront, Westwood, Beverly and Arlington.

The BBJ reported that first quarter real estate sales in Wilmington were up 46 percent over first quarter sales in 2005, with a 5 percent increase in median price. For the same time period, the Boston waterfront area enjoyed a 139 percent increase over 2005 sales, but endured a 29 percent decrease in median prices.

The big losers in the BBJ's findings included Boston Back Bay, Lynn, Framingham, Sudbury, Weston, and Plymouth.

"Such are the disparities of Greater Boston's housing market, which is really made up of 178 distinct municipalities or Boston Neighborhoods, each with its own housing stock demographics, location and amenities that attract or repel different kinds of buyers," wrote Brian Klacko in the BBJ article appearing in the May 12, 2006 edition titled 'Sales levels all over the map.'

obvious that they were filled with some sort of liquid. According to a packing slip attached to at least one of the barrels, they were filled with diethanolamine (DEA), a substance used in cutting oils, soaps, shampoos, cleaners, polishes, cosmetics, and pharmaceuticals.

According to some research conducted by DPW Superintendent Donald Onusseit, DEA is a corrosive agent, which can result in first-degree burns if exposed to the skin.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, "Acute inhalation exposure to diethanolamine in humans may result in irritation of the nose and throat, and dermal exposure may result in irritation of the skin."

DPW workers placed the barrels into "Overpack Drums" for protection. Wilmington Police and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) were alerted to the situation as soon as the DPW determined the barrels to be full. The packing slip that revealed the contents of the barrels also indicated that Pacetti Corp. was the company from which they originated.

Less than 24-hours later, at 5:41 a.m. on Friday, a Wilmington police officer on patrol observed seven more 55-gallon drums abandoned in the vicinity of 19 Draper Drive. Those drums also originated from Pacetti Corp.

Pacetti Corp is listed as having an address of 4 Hallberg Park, just off of Concord Street, in North Reading. The company, however, closed down several years ago, according to Wilmington Police Lt. Christopher Neville.

Wilmington police did track down the owner - a former Wilmington resident currently living in Londonderry, New Hampshire.

According to the owner, he had a conversation with an acquaintance over drinks, during which the acquaintance was contracted to dispose of the barrels for a cash payment of $500. The company owner did not know the individual's last name, but was assured that the chemicals would be disposed of properly.

"The company owner has taken full responsibility and will reimburse the Town fully for all expenses incurred," Neville said.

Each Overpack barrel, for instance, carries a cost of $100.

"The owner has pledged full cooperation, but we will be holding the investigation open until it is resolved to our complete satisfaction," Neville said.

meant for use against the submarines that lurked in these waters, detonated destroying what was left of the ship and killing several men who had escaped the original attack. As the survivors abandoned ship and clung to floating wreckage, the twisted hulk of the ship slipped beneath the waves becoming the US Navy's first destroyer lost to enemy action. Among the sixty-four crewmen lost in this action was Chief Machinist's Mate Martin J. Nee. Born in Boston on March 5th 1884, Martin Nee was living in Norfolk, Virginia at the time of his death and left a wife and three children.

In the waning days of World War II John L. Berrigan was a senior classman at Wilmington High School. An ambitious and patriotic youth, John joined the US Navy prior to receiving his diploma and although too late to see action he proudly served nonetheless. Stationed aboard the destroyer escort USS Solar, Seaman 2nd Class Berrigan was one of the crew when the ship put into the Naval Ammunition Depot at Earle, New Jersey on April 30th 1946. The task at hand was to offload the ship's weapons and ammunition, a standard procedure for ships set to undergo yard maintenance. By all accounts the process went smoothly until 11:30 a.m. when three successive blasts ripped through the ship. So destructive where the explosions, that the bow of the ship was ripped apart. Everything forward of the bridge was completely destroyed and the ship's superstructure was folded back towards the stem in an unrecognizable heap of twisted steel. Seaman Berrigan was among seven crewmembers killed, the explosion being attributed to a "dropped" Hedgehog anti-submarine mortar round. The ship was later towed to sea and scuttled, its sunken hulk becoming a memorial to those lost.

John A. Rich Memorial at Lowell Street and Maple Meadow Brook

In 1964 the United States Marine Corps 1st Marine Division moved its headquarters from the relative safety of the island of Okinawa to Chu Lai in South Vietnam. This was done in anticipation of increased combat operations in country. By 1966 the entire division was deployed to I Corps, primarily in the northern provinces of Quang Nam and Quang Ngai. During 1966 and 1967 the division took part in 10 named operations against the North Vietnamese Army and Viet Cong, most notably Operations Starlite, Hastings, and Union I and Union II. On August 25th 1966, artilleryman Private John Allan Rich was killed in action by enemy ground fire while serving in the Quang Ngai province becoming Wilmington's first casualty of the Vietnam War.

Elmer M. Drew Memorial at Woburn Street and West Street

The greatest combined sea and airborne invasion ever mounted was to be the final push to wrest control of Hitler's Fortress Europe. The Allies, having been pushed off the continent at Dunkirk and beaten back at Dieppe earlier in the war sought to gain a foothold on the Norman coast from which to launch their concluding assault on Berlin. The focus of the assault would be five beaches - code-named Sword, Juno, Gold, Omaha, and Utah. British and Canadian troops would land at the first three while the latter two were designated for American forces. It was at Omaha Beach the true horror of war hit our soldiers and sailors head-on, earning the strip of sand the ominous title "Bloody Omaha". It was here that Seaman 2nd Class Elmer M. Drew was killed in action when the landing craft that he crewed was hit by fire from German shore batteries attempting to repulse the invasion force. Seaman Drew was one of nearly two thousand naval personnel killed during the D-Day invasion.

William E. Butterworth Memorial at Concord Street and Federal Street

In late December of 1941 the USS Truxtun, a World War One era destroyer was pressed into service escorting vulnerable merchant convoys between Argentina, Newfoundland and Reykjavik, Iceland. This was a task that the US Navy was all too familiar with having fought in the closing months of World War One performing the same mission. This time the stakes were just as high and the waters just as dangerous as the sinking, by a German U-boat, of the destroyer USS Reuben James two months before Pearl Harbor clearly demonstrated. On Christmas day 1941 the USS Truxtun departed Boston bound for Reykjavik escorting convoy HX-168. Arriving in Iceland on January 13th 1942 she laid over for six days before departing for Argentina with convoy ON-57. Her passage west was nearly uneventful but while escorting the supply ship USS Pollux into Placentia Bay she was pushed off course by a fierce and blinding ocean snowstorm. On February 18th 1942 both ships ran aground and broke up almost immediately, the Navy suffering the deaths of over two hundred men from both ships. Among those lost was twenty-one year old Radioman 2nd Class William E. Butterworth of Aldrich Road. He left behind his mother Ethel Butterworth as his next of kin.

John Regan Memorial at Salem Street and Middlesex Avenue

One month before the Armistice, ending what was known as the Great War, became reality, troops of the American Expeditionary Force were engaged in one of the most protracted and bloodiest battles of 1918. The Meuse-Argonne Offensive pitted the US Army under General John Joseph Pershing, with nearly one half million troops, against the beleaguered German Army in a final combined push by allied forces to rout the enemy. Grinding to a halt several times due to both stiff resistance and a raging influenza epidemic that gripped the entire European continent the spirit of the German forces was finally broken on November 4 when they began a general retreat. Private John Regan was killed on October 11th 1918 during the US Army's advance on Naves, France.

sight of the accommodations reminded them that this was a week to put aside their interests and luxuries and become humble servants for the sake of others. Big circus tents functioned as men's and women's dorms. Shower facilities were rigged up in trailer trucks. Flush toilets were nowhere to be found.

The Good News Camp, as it was called, included a large tent that functioned as the outdoor kitchen and was adjacent to another restaurant/dining tent. This locale provided the surroundings where the Wilmington and Tewksbury residents spent much of the week. Their assignments included preparing food, dishing out nearly 1,000 meals per day, and then cleaning up afterwards so all those that came to the Good News Camp wouldn't go hungry.

Some took shifts unloading trailer trucks, taking inventory and working in the "store," which was actually another large tent used to store and distribute pallets of whatever donations happened to come in for the day. These items ranged from non-perishable food to diapers and formula to clothing. The donations were essential to local residents in the absence of commercial markets.

With temperatures into the 90's, the workdays could get very tiring and the first few days seemed to hardly offer a break for the weary teens. It was a reality check to remember that this was relief work in a disaster area and not a vacation. But the youth demonstrated a positive energy and worked long hours without complaining or arguing.

Working in the "store" offered frequent exposure to interesting stories from the storm victims; stories which usually began or ended with a sad event. The group was touched by one story of a man who was trapped under his refrigerator while trying to move it to block the flood waters from breaking down the door. His wife of 50 years was unable to free him and stayed by his side as they perished together.

In another bizarre story, four police officers involved in a Mississippi shootout in Pass Christian were separated from the rest of the force during the height of the storm. After escaping to higher ground in the town's library, rising waters would not permit them to open doors or windows to escape. Finally, a police car caught in the current smashed through the door and they were able to ride the floodwaters to safety on the hood of the car.

Wilmington High senior, Nathan Clapp also recalled one story of unselfish kindness. "While we were there one of the volunteers, a 19 year old woman who had driven a van of friends from Delaware, had her van stolen on their third day there. Even though they had no way to get home, they kept on working for the rest of the week."

Molly Brule, a Wilmington High sophomore, was surprised to find that she would not be gutting homes until she learned about the dangers of the poisonous black mold that has become so prevalent in the area. The group did manage to get some assignments away from tent city - they helped with yard cleanup and roof repair of damaged homes. Even the yard work required that the volunteers wear breathing protection.

Tuesday afternoon offered the group their first opportunity to take a break from the toil with a tour of the surrounding area. They drove to the levee and Lake Pontchartrain, which was surrounded by neighborhoods that had sustained significant damage.

After a close-up look at the damage they relaxed over a traditional southern meal of cat-fish, poboys, hush puppies and jambalaya. They followed dinner with a ferry ride across the Mississippi River and then a stroll through the historic French Quarter. The night concluded with a snack at Café du Monde, famous since 1862 for serving beignets (fried dough with powdered sugar) and coffee with chicory.

Tuesday's lighthearted tour would soon be met with the sharp contrast of Thursday's excursion to the Ninth Ward where the most shocking views of the week were witnessed. This low-lying neighborhood, bordered by the Mississippi River and Lake Pontchartrain, was totally devastated when Hurricane Katrina breeched the levees and high waters forced residents to their rooftops to be saved.

Joel Sanderson from Wilmington explains, "It seems almost pointless to describe our visit to the lower Ninth Ward and Charmette - ruined homes, empty malls, piles of debris, washed out homes. With each new street, we saw something that caused us to stop the car. We emptied our cameras in no time at all."

"Eventually, we came to a spot where they were repairing the levee. We looked around the streets that no longer had homes. Three concrete steps showed us where some homes used to stand, upside down cars rested on what used to be driveways, a half buried microwave, a sports trophy covered with dirt.

"Then we had one of the most sobering moments of the week. We came across a memorial for a child who died. Someone had arranged keepsakes on the cement slab of a missing home and had written in markers and crayons, 'You are not forgotten.' For a moment we all stood at the sight in prayer and did our best to remember the child and the hundreds of others that lost their lives on that horrible day."

Later that evening, the group of Bay Staters had to put aside their somber moods and serve another meal back at the camp.

One adult volunteer on the trip, Linnea Molgard, is a teacher at Whittier Technical High School in Haverhill. She notes, "One of my students moved from the lower Ninth Ward. She hasn't been back nor seen her home since Katrina hit. I don't have the heart to show her my pictures."

Friday allowed one last excursion - this time to see the Gulf of Mexico on the way to Pass Christian, Mississippi, where the group had planned to volunteer for the day. God's Katrina Kitchen was offering free meals in a parking lot at the beach. This time the First Baptist kids were on the receiving side of a meal - what a different experience - and boy did they appreciate it! When rain shut down their work detail for the day, they returned to Louisiana in time to serve dinner and clean up once again.

In the end, the students felt fulfilled that they had made a real difference during their week in New Orleans as evidenced by the gratitude and kindness that was returned to them. Trip coordinator, Gary Molgard, was pleased with the trip and pointed out, "Great things can happen when youth step out of their comfort zone, humble themselves and trust God to use them."

The trip also offered a dose of reality about the world, its struggles and the importance to reach out to others.

David Oblom, WHS senior, summed it up well when he said, "We shouldn't take things for granted, because something like this could happen to us at any time."

Material goods are temporary and can be lost to catastrophic events regardless of race, age or economic condition. But the love, shown through action by the youth of the First Baptist Church to residents of New Orleans, lasts forever and is greater than an abundance of possessions.

State Tournament Fever hits the diamonds

No. 12 seed softball team traveling to Saugus for first round game

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

For the fifth straight year under head coach Bob Surran, and for the 11th time in the past 12 years, the Wilmington High softball team will be participating in the MIAA Division 2 North sectional state tournament.

The Wildcats finished the regular season with a very respectable 12-8 season, after returning just five starters, three of which changed positions. Wilmington won three of its last four games this past week helping the team to get a better seed. Surran's team is the 12th seed, and will travel to the No. 5 seed Saugus on Friday afternoon beginning at 3:30 pm for a first round match-up.

Saugus finished with an 16-4 record, which included losses to Tewksbury, Lynn English, Beverly and Danvers. Tewksbury, the top seed in the tournament, defeated Wilmington twice this season.

Should Wilmington defeat Saugus, it would then play most likely Sunday afternoon against the winner North Andover/Wakefield.

If Wakefield defeats North Andover, the second round match-up would be at Aprile Field but if North Andover defeats Wakefield, Wilmington will be on the road for the quarterfinal game.

"I know Saugus won the Northeastern Conference and have a record of 16-4," said Surran. "They have a pitcher named Melissa Imondi, who I'm told can bring it pretty well. They have a couple of hitters, one in particular named Michelle Perrin who is pretty good. She's a left handed batter and sometimes that can present a problem because you don't know if she's going to bunt or slam one."

Wilmington has played much better in the past week posting victories against Georgetown, Rockport, Lowell and

Baseball team will take on Latin Academy

By JOHN CLEMENO
Sports Correspondent

DANVERS - A new season - the postseason - begins for the Wilmington High baseball team on Thursday, but the same question still haunts the Wildcats, who travel to Dorchester Thursday for a first-round matchup with Latin Academy (11-4) of the Boston City League.

Wilmington won the coin flip over Tewksbury and were seeded 13th. Latin Academy, who Tewksbury defeated 6-0 in the first round of last year's tournament, are seeded fourth.

Should Wilmington beat Latin Academy, it will play the winner of Reading/Wayland on the road, Saturday at 3:00 pm.

Pitching remains the great unknown for Wilmington coach Aldo Caira, who still doesn't know if Brian Caira (5-3, 4.24 ERA, 51 2/3 innings) will be ready to pitch come Thursday at 4:00 pm because of a balky back.

"Right now it's iffy for Brian to start on Thursday," said Aldo Caira of his No. 1 starter who has pitched more than twice as many innings as any other pitcher on the staff. "He was still a little sore (Tuesday) afternoon at practice. I kind of held him out. He did some light stretching and throwing."

"I talked with him a little and he understands if he can't go and give a solid five innings, then he's willing to step aside and allow me to pencil him in for the second game if we're lucky to get that far. He's putting the team ahead of himself, which is outstanding. He's a senior and it's his turn to pitch and he wants to win. I'm hoping he can go because Brian has been our workhorse. And I'd hate to keep a senior out of the game, if it turns out to be his last."

If Brian Caira can't go, No. 2 starter Tom Miele (2-1, 3.08 ERA, 25 innings) will get the call for the Wildcats, who last appeared in the postseason six years ago - Dick Scanlon's final season as manager.

Coming into the season, pitching and depth on the pitching staff were concerns for the Wildcats, after losing Bobby Sinopoli and Joe Mayo from the 2005 squad.

"My major concern [coming into the season] with the team was pitching," said Caira. "I knew we had a veteran team and I thought we'd be able to field and hit. We didn't have a lot of varsity experience coming in, but we will next year. I got a lot of nice innings from Brian and Tommy Miele came to the forefront, so it worked out pretty well for us. I won't lie, if we had a real ace, we may have been able to win another five or six games, but all in all I'm happy with what we did."

Just the same, Caira will carry three extra pitchers on the 20-man postseason roster. He'll call up JV hurlers Brian Svensson, Carlton Lantini and Kyle Lunt.

One thing Caira doesn't have to worry about is offense. As a team, Wilmington hit .311 and scored 6.7 runs per game. While the whole team came together in the middle of the season during their 8-1 run, it was the bats that drove the Wildcats to the postseason. In particular, it was the top four in the order - Andy Strathman (.462, 19 runs, 13 RBI), Al Montalto (.363, 17 runs, 12 RBI), Sean Murphy (.385, 16 runs, 2 HR, 15 RBI) and Eric Legro (.450, 18 runs, 14 RBI) - doing most of the heavy lifting.

"I haven't had a team that hit .311 as a team in the five years I've been here," said Caira. "We had four one-run games where we didn't get the clutch hit when we needed it, but I was real happy with the way we hit."

Defensively, the team was able to manage its mistakes, not making the errors in crucial times and turning several double plays.

"We had a few more errors this year than we did last year, but they didn't hurt as much," said Caira. "They weren't the important ones that lost games. They were errors that we were able to come back with a nice play following the error to get out of the inning. We turned a ton of double plays this year. Andy [Strathman] was solid at third base and Josh [Mayo] was getting to more balls this year than he did last year."

In order for Wilmington make any noise in the postseason, Caira feels the team needs to jump out early and stay aggressive at the plate - something he felt they weren't doing after qualifying for the tournament.

"I really felt we let up a little in the 18th and 19th games we played, but I thought in the 20th game against Reading, we got more aggressive at the plate and I'm hoping that carries over to Thursday," said Caira. "We're obviously on the road as a 13th seed. I think our main focus is jumping out on top and putting the pressure on the other team."

"We've did that pretty much during our winning streak. We were able to hop out on top of road games, and that's what we got to shoot for. I always tell them, let's be the first team to score and the last team off the field."

For a team that exceeded expectations, there might be a tendency for Wilmington just to be happy in the postseason, but Caira is sure his team will be ready play Thursday and beyond.

"The kids are real excited, so I don't think there's going to be anything magical I can say to get them to be pumped up any more than they are," said Caira. "And they want to win that first game and see what happens after that. So there's really no Knute Rockne speech that I'm going to be able to come up with that's going to get them more motivated that they already are."

With his Wildcat legacy already etched, Murphy is enjoying every moment in anticipation of playing meaningful June baseball for the first time at Wilmington.

"Baseball is my favorite of the three sports, by far," said Murphy from Twi-Field in Danvers where he was Wilmington's lone representa-

Wilmington High's Shawn Fahey, a junior, is not only the Cape Ann League's top javelin thrower, but this past Saturday he was crowned the champion at the State Class C Meet held at Milton High School. He now advances to this Saturday's All-State Meet which will be held at Fitchburg State College.

Fahey the top thrower in the league, and Division 3

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

MILTON - Wilmington High junior Shawn Fahey just seems to get better as the stakes get higher. Fahey starred in the javelin throw for the Wildcats all season long and since the post season has started he has stepped up his game even more.

Fahey's latest exploits came in last weekend's State Class C Meet at Milton High School where he outdistanced all competitors, winning the state title with a throw of 169-0. This came on the heels of winning the Cape Ann League title the previous week while setting a Wilmington High record with a throw of 176-2.

With his outstanding performance at the States Fahey has earned a trip to the All-State Meet on Saturday at Fitchburg State College. With the way things are progressing for Fahey, a trip to the All-New England Meet the following weekend would also come as no surprise.

Fahey, as well as the other competitors in the javelin, had to battle not only each other, but also poor conditions throughout the day, as the runway used for the event was very muddy due to rain the night before and the morning of the meet.

But Fahey battled through better than anybody and came away with the biggest win of his career.

"I was really pumped. I couldn't believe I won," Fahey said. "I felt like I was throwing pretty well, but with the conditions being kind of slippery I was not sure if I had done well enough. I was surprised the conditions were as bad as they were, but everybody had to deal with it."

Fahey entered the meet as the number one seed, so expectations were certainly high for him going in. If he felt any pressure he certainly did not show it during the event, as he managed to focus on simply achieving the goal that coach Bob Cripps had set for him.

"I really wanted to win and I felt I had to do well after being ranked number one," Fahey said. "But coach had said that if I just threw at least 160-0 I would qualify for All-States, so that's what I concentrated on. I just wanted to be in the top four to qualify."

Cripps was not surprised to see his star end up atop the field of very talented competitors.

"He was ranked number one going in so I figured he could do it," Cripps said. "I was very happy for him, and it is nice to see him getting recognition for all of the hard work he has put in. He's very versatile and he's a nice kid."

For Fahey winning the state title was obviously a thrill, but so was just being at the state's premier event with premier competition both in the javelin as well as the 200 meters where he set a personal best with a time of 23.7, but did not qualify for the All-States.

"I was excited to be there, and be around all of these other kids to see what everybody else was doing," Fahey said. "I liked it better than CAL's because at CAL's I was running back and forth between events and here I got a long break between the events."

If Fahey was excited to bring his talents to the Class C Meet, he is absolutely thrilled to be competing in this weekend's All-State meet where he will be facing competition from all Divisions throughout the state.

"I am the only one on the team going so I will be a little lonely at practice," Fahey said. "But it's exciting. Looking at the scores from around the state I feel like I have decent chance to place."

The only disappointment for Fahey in heading to the All-States is that he will not be joined by teammate Nick Farnsworth, who took fifth in the javelin at that state, just missing the cut to qualify.

"Nick does really well and his father has been a big help to us because he did the javelin in high school and in college," Farnsworth said. "He actually should have qualified because he had one throw that was probably 165-0, but they called a foul on him for just barely being over the line. That would have put him at least third and it would have been nice to have him there with me."

All-Conference Baseball Player

Murphy's bat does the talking

By JOHN CLEMENO

DANVERS - By whichever method we use to measure a successful high school athletic career, Wilmington senior Sean Murphy has already met the criteria.

The three-sport star excelled in football, catching 14 touchdown passes as a wide receiver in his Junior season when Wilmington made the postseason for the first time since 1976.

That same year, he was named captain of varsity basketball team and was part of three straight teams that won the Cape Ann League title and qualified for the state tournament.

with the best players in this league means a lot. And now we got to play in the states on Thursday and it should be really exciting."

The 13th seeded Wildcats travel to Dorchester for a matchup with 4th seed Latin Academy (11-4) of the Boston City League on Thursday (4:00 pm).

Added satisfaction stems from where this team came from last year when it posted a 3-17 record. Murphy admits it was not a fun season for him and it impacted him at the plate, but the team didn't have the hitters around him.

"His Junior year was the worst of the three [seasons]," said Wilmington manager Aldo Caira. "He had that second-year jinx, I guess. But, to his defense, the league knew him after his sophomore year and they knew how to pitch to him. And we really, last year, didn't have a hitter behind him to protekt him like we do this year with Legro. So, he got a lot more pitches to hit this year. He was flirting with .500 until the end of the season. So, having Eric back there was a big help to him."

Murphy's career at Wilmington began auspiciously when, as a sophomore, he homered in his first at-bat, drove in a run with a single in his next at-bat, and then homered again in his third at-bat ("A game I'll never forget"). After dipping a bit as a junior, he rebounded to hit .385 with two homers and 15 RBI in 2006.

"I think the biggest change has been team chemistry. Everyone wanted to play this year," said Murphy. "Last year, when a team scored against us, we were done. Right away. No one wanted to play. It was terrible. But not now. We score then they score, then we come back. At the end of the last game last year, I said we were going to be 12-8 this year, and everyone was pushing to be 12-8. No one wants to back down, we all want to win this year."

"Last season was like, 'get the season over with and let's try to go to games and get out of here in an hour and a half' and that's not how this team is this year."

As one of three team captains, Murphy does a lot his leading in the clubhouse, and ensuring last season's attitude does not creep back.

"I'm always trying to have everyone up, everyone prepared, everyone ready," said the center fielder. "Because we have great talent, we really do, when guys push themselves to be real good. If they're prepared to go and into the game, they're going to play their best. And we really can't be stopped like that."

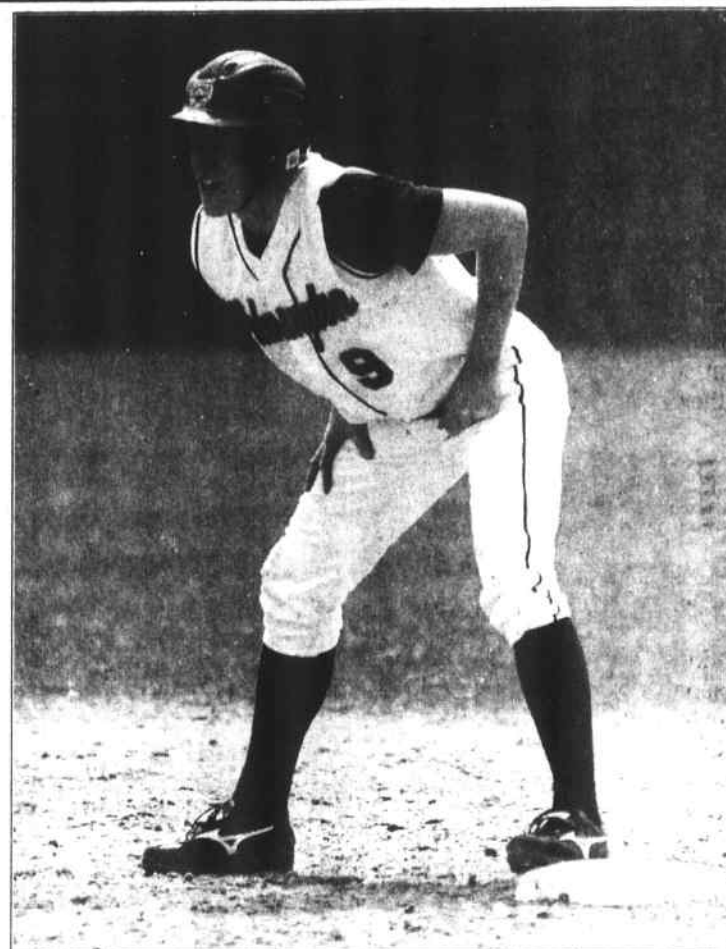

On the field, he's been invaluable to Caira.

"Sean is like having a coach out in the field," said Caira. "He's that type of a player, he's moving kids around. He knows the batters in the league. It's just comforting to have him out there. He's the field general for me. I'm going to miss him next year."

Looking to Thursday's tournament game at Latin Academy, Murphy speaks with all the confidence of someone who's been to the postseason before.

"We've been hitting well. We have over a .300 batting average this year. We're getting, like, 13 hits a game," said Murphy. "If we keep that up and our pitchers throw strikes, we are almost unbeatable, because we know how to make the plays in the field. And when we don't put anybody on base by error, we don't have a problem."

Wildcats fall in both games of Scanlon Tournament

By JOHN CLEMENO
Sports Correspondent

What a difference a week makes.

The Wilmington High baseball team were winners in eight of its last nine games and had qualified for the state tournament with a victory over Georgetown a week ago. Three losses later, the Wildcats stand at 10-10 and will face Latin Academy (11-4) in the state tournament beginning tomorrow.

Last Thursday at Amesbury, Wilmington dropped an extra-inning affair, 6-5, to the Indians on a controversial call in the ninth inning. Last weekend, the Wildcats lost both games played in the Dick Scanlon Memorial Tournament. Melrose defeated Wilmington, 4-3, in Saturday's preliminary game, and then they dropped the consolation game to Reading, 9-6, on Sunday.

"I'm not very happy that we lost the last three games, but I'm not too disappointed," said Wilmington manager Aldo Caira. "We were hoping to win a few games in the end and maybe host a tournament game, but we play well on the road and I'm encouraged by that."

Caira's word will be put to the test when the Wildcats kickoff the tournament Thursday at 4:00 pm on the road against the fourth-seeded Dragons of Latin Academy.

Wilmington's offense was active against Amesbury and Melrose, but were unable to get the big hit when it needed, which is something the team had little trouble in doing during its recent run of success.

"I think after the tenth win, our guys weren't aggressive at the plate," said Caira, referring the 10th win that qualified the team for the tournament. "I told them that before the Reading game; I told them I wanted them to be ready to swing and be more aggressive at the plate. We had some good at-bats against Reading - and they had a very good pitcher on the mound. We only had five hits, but we were able to score six runs because we were swinging and getting the bat on the ball. I liked what I saw, and I look for them to carry that into the tournament."

Against Amesbury last week, Wilmington was looking to avenge a 10-1 drubbing at the hands of Indians in the Wildcats, home opener April 13. They had opportunities to put them away in the eighth and ninth innings, but left runners in scoring position both times.

Then, in the bottom of the ninth, Amesbury loaded the bases with one out. Josh Mayo fielded a grounder and threw to catcher Shane Foley, who was on the plate for the force out at home. Foley caught the ball, however, when the runner slid, he took Foley's feet out from underneath him. The umpire called the runner safe because Foley took his foot off the base, enraging not only the Wilmington coaching staff but the Wilmington parents as well.

"I'll tell you, I thought the parents were going to have a fit," said Caira. "I think probably this would be the second game in my five years as a head coach here that I really have to blame an umpire for that game. You know, Tommy Miele a great game and Kevin Skinner pitched his heart out, so it really was a shame the game had to end like that. I tried to explain (my point of view), but he wanted to hear none of that and just walked off the field."

If Wilmington were expected to win any of its remaining three games, it was Saturday's against Melrose. The Wildcats, most successful pitcher, Brian Caira, was on the hill against the Red Raiders, who entered the contest 5-13. And it looked like Wilmington was going to put the excruciating loss to Amesbury behind them, when it jumped to an early 2-0 lead after one inning. Unfortunately, their inability to hit in the clutch stayed with them as they left a total of 12 men on base - nine in scoring position.

"For some reason, the past couple of games, we haven't been able to get that clutch hit that we were getting during that little streak we were on," said Caira. "We gotta get the bats going, because that's how we win a lot of our games. I thought we played well enough to win defensively."

Brian Caira labored through 76 pitches before leaving with none out in the fourth inning after walking the leadoff batter. The pitcher was seen after every inning stretching his back and it clearly impacted him on the mound. Through it all, he left giving his team a chance to pull out the win.

"I got to give all the credit in the world to Brian. He's had a bad back for the past few weeks and he just really struggled with it today," said Aldo Caira. "I give him a lot of credit for doing what he did. He kept us in the game. We were right there when he left."

Wilmington jumped to an early 2-0 lead when Brendan Sheehan doubled home Andy Strathman and Al Montalto, both of whom had walked to start off the game.

Brain Caira kept the Red Raiders in check in the first two innings. He ended the first inning when he started a 1-6-3 double play, and induced a fly out and foul out with runners on first and third and one out to end the second inning.

His trouble started in the third with one out when Melrose's Phil Meador walked on four pitches and Jack Pisotti singled to center. One out later, Charlie Ciccone doubled to right, driving in both runs to tie the game, 2-2.

Melrose took the lead in the fourth when Matt Montani doubled to lead off the inning and scored on a single by Greg Bidgood, who was thrown out trying to stretch it to a double.

The Wildcats knotted the game in their half of the fourth. Greg Stewart walked and moved to second on Tom Miele's sacrifice bunt. He moved to third on Strathman's ground out and came home on Montalto's infield single.

The Red Raiders pushed across its winning run in the fifth. After Brian Caira walked Meador to lead off the inning, manager Aldo Caira called to the bullpen for sophomore Brian Svensson, who was making his first varsity appearance.

After a Pisotti single put men on first and second, Mike Fimiani's slow roller to third was handled by Strathman, who stretched, lunged and then tagged the bag for the force out at third base.

"I thought our defense played tremendously today," said Caira. "That play that Strathman made with runners on first and second to catch that kid at third base was phenomenal. Plus he made a couple of nice catches on foul balls. Our defense was there, we just weren't able to get the right hit when we needed it."

Pisotti then stole third putting runners on first and third with one out. Svensson, trying to keep Fimiani close at first base, threw an errant pick off attempt resulting in the winning run. It was a tough break for the sophomore, who went on to retire his next eight batters and nine of his last 10.

"It was nice to see a sophomore come up from the JVs and give us a couple of innings," said Aldo Caira. "He pitched pretty well considering the pressure and what the situations were, Brian did a good job."

In Sunday's consolation game, Wilmington grabbed a 6-3 lead after three innings, scoring mostly due to the largess of Reading. The Wildcats got only five hits, but were able to manufacture runs through walks, errors and hit batsmen.

But Wilmington's biggest deficiency - pitching - appeared in the fourth inning when strikes were hard to come by and the Rockets scored six runs to grab a 9-6 lead that stood up the rest of the way.

"We just couldn't throw strikes in the fourth and they were able to get some hits around some walks and a hit batter," said Caira. "After that we were unable to get the offense going again."

Eric Valenti started for the Wildcats and took the loss, leaving with the bases loaded after 3 1/3 innings. Kevin Skinner struck out the first man he faced but then walked two and hit a batter. Caira then went to JV callup Carlton Lantini, who was greeted by a double and a single before settling down for the final 3 1/3 innings.

One of the positive things to come out of the three-game losing streak was the performance of Caira's JV pitchers. Svensson pitched well on Saturday followed by Lantini on Sunday.

"Lantini had the knuckler going and caught them a little off guard," said Caira. "He threw mostly fastballs at first, trying to get his pitches over the plate, but he really got tough when he was mixing in the knuckler."

The Wildcats had one last shot in the bottom of the seventh inning when they loaded the bases with two out. Sheehan, who fouled off foul balls on a 3-2 count, hit a line drive to left was eventually chased down and hauled in for the final out.

"Brendan's been hitting the ball real well lately and we thought this one was going to tie the game," said Caira. "If the ball was just another five feet to the left, it would have been."

Mixed results for track teams at State Meet

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

MILTON — The Wilmington High boys track team had several athletes qualify for last Saturday's State Class C Meet at Milton High, and many of them did very well, representing the Wildcats among the best athletes all of Eastern Mass.

None were better than junior Shawn Fahey who won the state title in the javelin with a throw of 169-0, but he was joined by several others, who although they did not place high enough to qualify for this weekend's All-State Meet, did very well including some personal bests.

Nick Farnsworth joined Fahey with a great effort in the javelin throw, narrowly missing out on qualifying for the All-

States with a fifth place finish with a distance of 157-10.

In the shot put the Wildcats were led by senior Will Nieman's throw of 44-10, which was good for eighth place, as well as a very good performance by sophomore Nate Clarkin who had a personal best distance of 44-10 which placed him 15th.

"Unfortunately we will miss Will very much. He has done a great job for us," Wilmington coach Bob Cripps said. "On the other hand Nate is just a sophomore and he has a very bright future."

Senior Matt Marden also competed in both the javelin and the shot put, with a distance of 134-06 in the javelin and 42-11.25 in the shot put.

"This is the first year Matt has done spring track. He has always done baseball," Cripps said. "We were very glad to have him with us this year."

Sophomore Antar George set a personal best in the 100 meters with a time of 11.43, while Fahey set a personal best in the 200 meters with a time of 23.7, followed by teammate Brad Colegrove in a time of 24.1.

Senior Alex Chalmers was another Wildcat who wrapped up a great career on Saturday. While not placing in the top four, he did post a great time of 2:04.55, wrapping up what has been a frustrating senior season that saw him battle injuries and illness almost from the beginning. The time was good enough to place Chalmers 15th overall.

"It was a very tough year for him because he was sick most of the season," Cripps said. "But he started coming along nicely as the year went on. He moved way up in the standings which was a great accomplishment given what has gone through."

The 4x100 relay team of George, Mike Stewart, Colegrove and Fahey took 8th place with a time of 45.25, while the 4 x 800 team of PJ Russo, Tony Karalekas, Bobby Folk and Dan Hunt finished ninth with a time of 8:45.70.

Along with his fine performance in the 4 x 100 relay, Stewart also competed in the 110 meter hurdles with a time of 16.40.

Overall the boys finished in 16th place out of 28 teams with 12 points, while meet winner Wellesley had 61 points.

Girls Team

On the girls side, the top performer was sophomore Stephanie Baima in the high jump, who took second place with a jump of 5-2, falling just two inches short of the state championship.

Baima was hardly alone, however, in her fine performance. The Wildcats got great efforts from freshman Natalie Russo in the two mile who took 11th place in a time of 12:17.35 and Alicia Murray who took 13th in the 800 meters with a time of 2:31.42.

Junior Kim Silva finished 24th in the 300 meter hurdles with a time of 51.35, while Nadia Prinzivalli was 28th in the shot put with a distance of 30-08.50.

The 4x400 team of Russo, Jen Comer, Silva and Breanne Bozzella came in 21st with a time of 4:46.47.

Overall the girls finished 21st out of 28 teams with eight points, while meet winner Hopkinton had 71 points.

Baima jumps to second place finish

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

MILTON — Wilmington high sophomore Stephanie Baima entered Saturday's State Class C Meet at Milton High with something to prove. After starting in the high jump all season long, jumping at least 5-0 in every meet for the Wildcats, she had failed to meet her own expectations in the Cape Ann League Meet the week before with a jump of 4-10.

While the height was good enough to place her fourth in the CAL Meet and qualify for the state meet, it was not good enough for Baima, who set her sights on making a much stronger impression against the stronger competition at the state meet.

Baima certainly bounced back in style on Saturday, taking second place with a jump of 5-2, and qualifying for this weekend's All-State Meet at Fitchburg State College.

"I had a really bad day at CAL's because I did not really get to practice at all," Baima said. "I was very disappointed with that, but it gave me even more incentive going into this (past) week."

Wildcats coach Tom Bradley knew going into the state meet that he and the rest of the field would see a much different Baima than they saw at the CAL meet.

"The CAL meet kind of came out of the blue because she had been jumping 5-0 and 5-2 consistently, so this was more like it," Bradley said. "I was very happy for her. I would have hated to see her end the season with the CAL after doing so great all year long."

For Baima appearing in the state meet as just a sophomore was the thrill of her young career, as she saw what it was like to compete against the best Eastern Mass. has to offer.

"The girls were amazing, just so talented," Baima said. "It was a little depressing to see that the girl who won is also a sophomore. But I love track and I will continue to try and get better."

The sophomore Baima finished behind was Christina Izzicupo of Stoneham who had a jump of 5-4. Baima actually finished tied at 5-2 with junior Alexa Siegel of Arlington Catholic and sophomore Dana Butler of Holliston, but she earned her second place finish by needing fewer opportunities to achieve the height.

Bradley is obviously very happy with Baima's performance this season, but more than that he is very much looking forward to what lies ahead for the next two seasons.

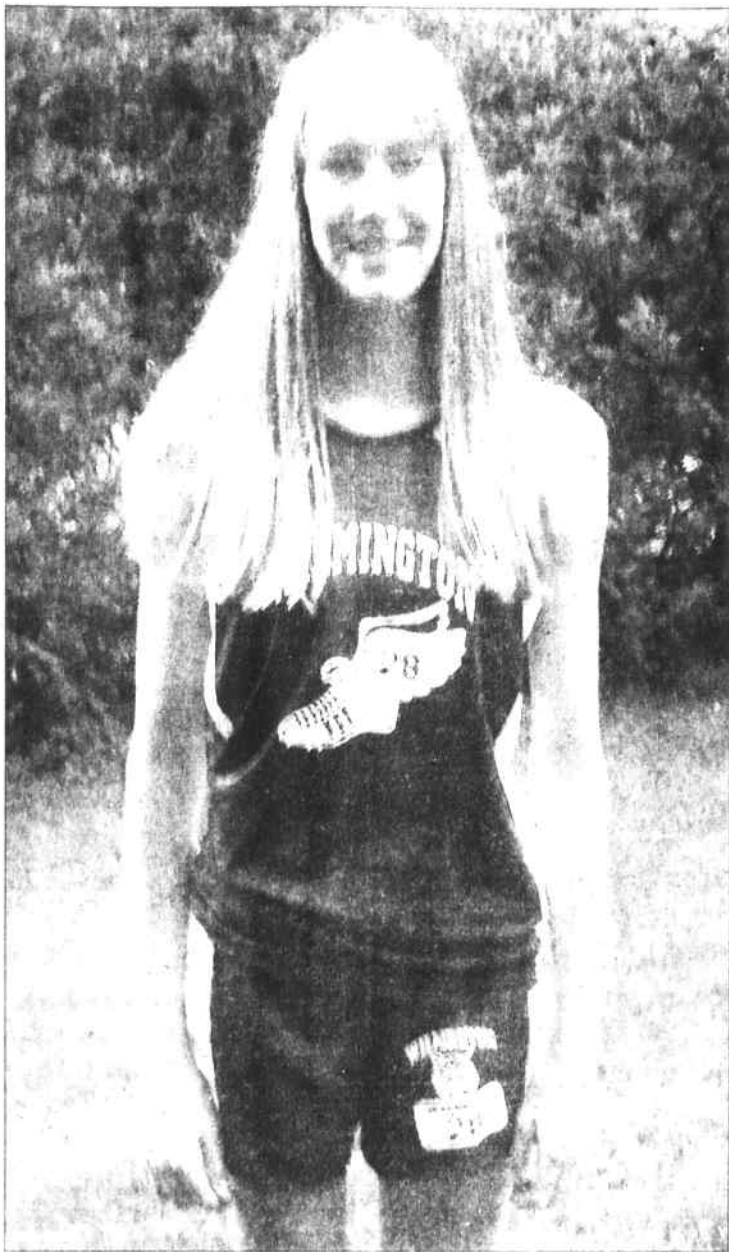

"Going into next year she has a chance to be even better," Bradley said.

While the competition around Baima is also very young, she is confident in her ability to continue to compete with not only the top finishers from this meet, but all others as well, thanks to the great preparation she is getting at Wilmington High.

"I am very happy to just be a sophomore and I know that my opportunities are very good for the next couple of years," Baima said. "Becky Rufo graduated from here and was great in the high jump and she has been coaching us this year. She will be with us for the next two years and I think she will be a great asset for us."

Wilmington High sophomore Stephanie Baima finished in second place in the high jump during Saturday's Class C State Meet held at Milton High School.

Wilmington High senior pitcher Cathy Sheerin tosses to first base to make an out during a recent CAL softball game. Sheerin and the rest of the Wildcats take on Saugus in the first round of the state tournament on Friday. (Jessica Styles photo)

Under 12-B Girls soccer team wins tourney championship

The Wilmington U-12 B Lady-Cats soccer team played in the Billerica Memorial day soccer tournament. The Lady Cats won 3 straight games defeating their opponents 5-0, 2-0 and 1-0 and earning the girls the privilege of returning on Memorial day to play for the championship. The Lady Cats faced a Reading U-12B team. Going into the second half with the score tied at 0-0, Mikayla Visconti fired off a corner kick and after a give and go play she rocketed a shot into the Reading net giving the Wildcats a 1-0 lead. The Girls held on and won the Championship with an impressive 9 goals scored and NO GOALS allowed series.

The U-12B team players are Lexi Arsenault, Lauren Azevedo, Victoria Beck, Katie Blanch, Tri-captain Katie Bray,

Masconomet, and falling to Tewksbury. The win over Lowell was probably the program's biggest victory in the past five years. Lowell won the Division 1 state championship last June.

Surran said that when it comes to the tournament, Wilmington has to do the simple things to be successful.

"We have to play defense," he said. "We can't go out and beat ourselves and that's what I've been stressing to the girls is just to make the basic play. If a groundball is hit to them, make the play first and get an out. If the other team beats us with something we didn't teach the girls, than shame on us. But if we get beat, it has to be on hits and no errors."

Offensively, the 'Cats had a very strong week, except for the game against Tewksbury in which they were no-hit by sophomore Marissa Fiorentino. But the 'Cats did very well against Hebert, who will be going to UMass Lowell on a softball scholarship.

"We've been hitting the ball the last five games," said Surran. "We won three out of four games. We didn't hit against Tewksbury, but in the other games we did. This Imondi girl can bring heat. So we're going to crank up the hitting machine all week at practice and see if we can concentrate on putting the ball in play. If we can do that, and (pitcher) Cathy (Sheerin) is on, you never know what can happen. You just can't have a game with 14 strikeouts. You can't expect to win if you're striking out that many times."

Sheerin was tremendous this past week, and seems to really throwing much better in the second half of the season. She shut out both Rockport and Georgetown, and pitched very well against Lowell and Masconomet.

"I'm told that Saugus is not a great hitting team," said Surran. "If the defense can make the plays and Cathy is on, I like our chances."

Surran said that the top two seeds Tewksbury and Amesbury are the favorites, although he thinks Triton could make some noise.

"Amesbury is my choice," he said. "I can't vote against (head coach) Chris Perry. Tewksbury may have more talent, but I've never seen anyone prepare to win a big game better than Chris. Amesbury finished 18-2 this year and they didn't have an all-league pitcher. I find that really amazing. I think Tewksbury will be awfully tough but if it comes down to those two teams, I take my chances with Chris."

The state qualifying week began for the Wildcats last Wednesday when the 'Cats came away with an exciting 1-0, 9-inning win over Georgetown. Senior Cathy Sheerin was the star in the game as she not only tossed nine innings of shut out ball, but she knocked in Colleen Magee with the walk off single.

On the mound Sheerin gave up just four hits, while walking one and striking out ten.

The next day, Sheerin's shut out streak continued as she tossed her second straight complete game doughnut, as the Wildcats topped Rockport, 7-0, which officially got the team into post season play for the 11th straight year and fifth straight under Surran.

Stephanie Steeves was the lone batter to have two hits in the game while she also drove in a pair and scored two runs to lead the way offensively. Brittany Collins also scored a pair of runs, and Maggie Sorrentino knocked in two RBI. Katie Cole, Nicole Bockus and Magee also had one RBI each.

On Saturday afternoon, Wilmington was blanked 3-0 by Tewksbury, who finished the season at 18-2. Redmen sophomore Marissa Fiorentino tossed a no-hitter and walked just two Wildcat batters and struck out nine. Sheerin was the tough luck losing pitcher as she gave up ten hits, while walking one and striking out five.

On Sunday night, Wilmington won arguably its biggest victory in the past five years by knocking off the reigning Division 1 state champions of Lowell, 3-2, at Martin Field. Wilmington scored two runs in the first and then had a 3-1 lead before Lowell added one in the seventh making things interesting.

Steeves again was the lone batter with multiple hits as she ended the game going 2-for-3 with a RBI. Sheerin and Cole also picked up RBIs. Sheerin was the winning pitcher as she went the distance giving up one earned run on five hits, while walking one and striking out four.

"I was very proud of the girls for that win," said Surran. "They played very well and the kids really played an excellent game. Sometimes you win games but you don't play your best, but in that game I thought everyone came together and that's really a nice feeling when they do that, and win. Lowell's good - they're really good. (Pitcher) Katie Hebert is very good and she needed an out she would rear back and get a strikeout."

On Monday afternoon, the busy week of play came to an end as did the regular season the 'Cats bumped off Masconomet, 7-3. Wilmington's record in the league plays ends at 12-8, while the 'Cats also ended up winning four of its last five games, after a tough loss to North Reading last Tuesday.

In the win over Masco, Colleen Magee delivered three RBI, while, Cole had two hits and Kim Ciampa scored two runs to lead the way offensively. Once again Sheerin notched the win which included striking out 11 batters.

"We really took it to Masconomet," said Surran. "It was 7-0 early and they got three late runs but that's not indicative of the score. We really pounded them."

Wilmington High Sub-Varsity Round-Up

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High freshmen baseball team finished the season with a very good 9-6-1 record this season.

"Start to finish, we improved a whole bunch as a team," said Coach Claude Beaudet.

One game in that really showed a lot of character was against Newburyport, as Wilmington pulled away a 2-1 win in the 12th inning. Dan Dellisola pitched eight and two-thirds innings and Jon Spurr finished up the game with three and one-third innings of no-hit baseball. The Wildcats were losing 1-0 going into the seventh, where they tied it up, and then won it in the twelfth.

Another highlight of the season was the team's bounce back against Amesbury. Amesbury won the first meeting 13-4. Then, Wilmington traveled to Amesbury and won, 11-1.

"We hit the ball real well in that particular game, and we only made two errors, and a trademark for us this year was booting the ball a little bit," said Beaudet.

Another great set of wins was against Methuen, a Division I school. The Wildcats beat them twice, 6-2 and 8-5.

Another high point came from the fact that four pitchers recorded wins for the Wildcats, a stat Beaudet said was rare for a freshmen team. Dellisola, Spurr, Mike Manganelli and Steve Stewart, who went 3-1, all pitched very well. Anthony Morlani had a great year behind the plate as catcher. He was the number three hitter in the lineup and, "showed great leadership, he has a very bright future in baseball," said Beaudet.

Ryan Searles was the leadoff batter, and "really came along during the season in terms of quality at-bats and not trying to pull the ball. He ended the year with an average in the high .300's," said Beaudet.

Also contributing for the Wildcats was Matt Hachey, Ryan Kennedy, Eric Lunt, Colin MacDonald, Craig Melillo, Mike Reed, Mike Scola, Anthony Vibert and Brian Williams.

"Everybody developed tremendously during the season. They made great strides from beginning to end of the season. They were a little overwhelmed at the beginning, with the intensity of the high school level and what to expect, and what I expected of them," said Beaudet. "If this group keeps at it they should all help the varsity program someday."

Freshmen Softball

The Lady Cats had a good season, hovering right around .500 all year.

"We did pretty good in the beginning, winning three out of our first four games," said Coach Richard Wheatley. "Then five good players moved up to JV, then it got a little tougher."

The season started off well with a 4-3 win over Amesbury.

"That was a great pitched game. There were only a few walks and we played really well," said Wheatley.

Another good game was against Ipswich, in which the Lady Cats trounced Ipswich, 33-10.

"We pretty much scored runs at will in that game, and all of their runs came late in the game," said Wheatley.

Colleen Kennedy played very well all season. She played shortstop and was an exceptional base stealer.

"She's the best base runner I've had in a while," said Wheatley.

Kristen Browne came along well with the bat as the season progressed. Devon White was the pitcher the second half of the season, because the pitcher the first half of the year moved up to JV. Kerry Hanfin was a Utility player in the infield, and was the fifth hitter in the lineup. Rachael Serrano had to learn how to catch this year, and did a fine job.

"Angela Maglione was the team spirit. Some people just can't get upset. She kept us going every game," said Wheatley. "I am proud of the growth the girls made, some had experience and then were moved up to JV. The girls without experience had to step up. When we scored 33 runs (against Ipswich) we knew we were there, we had matured as a team."

JV Baseball

The Wildcats finished the season at 9-10. It was a frustrating year, as the team could not put together a long streak of wins.

"We just had runs where we'd win three games and then lose two," said Brian Svensson, a member of the team.

Carlton Lentini, another team member agreed stating, "It was like two steps forward and two steps back every time."

As the season went on we didn't progress much we would bring our 'A' game one day and not bring it the next," said Corey Tobin.

The team has plenty of talent, which was probably a reason why players were so frustrated by their performance. Hitting pitching was not at a premium, but win streaks were still hard to come by.

"Hitting was pretty good all season for everyone, I know we had a team average over .300. And we had pretty solid pitching all year except for a few occasions," said Charlie Waitt.

"We had a lot of fun this year, but it was disappointing with the record being what it was," said Alan Dooley. "We all have a lot of talent and we all get along. We have a bright future."

"At the beginning of the year we couldn't win on the road and then we got home and we won three games and then we went on a little run until we lost three or four and we just weren't a consistent team," said Svensson.

The team got good pitching from Svensson, Lentini, Jared Waite, Kyle Lunt, and Mike Enwright and the offense came from many different batters including Matt Bibeau, Mike Cabral, Brendan Doherty, Bryan Kelley, Dave Rak, and Nick Robarge.

JV Softball

The Lady Cats finished the season right at .500 as well. They had a nice mix of freshmen moving up and sophomores staying and providing leadership. Michelle White was the pitcher. She had a rough start in the first games, but she came around and pitched very well for the remainder of the season.

The offense came from all sides. Alicia Nazarro, who caught for the team, had a very high batting average and high on base percentage. Julie Gorman played on the left side of the infield and moved up from the freshmen team and hit very well. First baseman Jamie Burns also moved up from the freshmen and did very well at the plate.

Also playing well was Kristen Brophy, Nicole Bockus, Nicole Bradley, Alanna Brush, Nina Burke, Michelle Catania, Rachel Haggerty, Sam MacDougall, Tatum McNally, Kristen Ozelis, Melanie Pickett, Ashley Taylor and Maria Tucker.

"I knew we'd have a good season, but .500 I was a little surprised," said Coach Tara Lavigne. "We really moved along well during the year and when we beat Amesbury, they have one of the best programs in the state, that was really one of our best moments."

Girls Lacrosse

For a fledgling lacrosse program with all new players, a gradual learning curve is expected. A new coach and a whole new group of girls couldn't ask more than 100 percent effort from each other, and that's what they got. They finished with a 2-9-1 record, ending the year with a two game win streak.

"They made awesome progression all year," said coach Lois Nardo. "I had one girl who played before and the entire team has to learn everything from the beginning."

Mary Hall and Kelsey McGuire split time at goalie. At defense, a really strong performance was delivered by three freshmen, Jamie Gingras, Lauren Nasiff and Kayla Whooley.

At midfield, Lisa Rooker and Charlotte Jensen did a great job. Defensive wings were Krista Cavallaro, Danielle Butters and Kristen O'Brien. Center was played by Briana Brown, Jill Ennis and Megan Keane. Attack was played by Liz Chin, Kathy Nguyen, Jackie Mullens, Noelle Silsbee and Nicole Ingram. Captains were Jillian Miranda, Megan Keane, Charlotte Jensen and Kate McGrath.

"We were a big team, but we're making steady, steady progress. The kids really improved and progressed in their skill level like running picks and double teams," said Nardo.

Hopefully, the girls lacrosse team keeps progressing and all of their hard work pays off in the years to come and their late season success inspires them to keep playing.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Rams softball team draws first round bye

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech softball team will kick off state tournament play on Saturday afternoon a home against a yet to be determined opponent. The Lady Rams, who finished the regular season with a 16-4 record and earned the fifth seed in the Division 3 North Tournament will take on either 12th seeded Lowell Catholic (12-8) or 21st seeded Tyngsboro (10-10).

Those two teams will square off earlier in the week for the right to travel to the Tech and take on the Lady Rams.

Shawsheen has not faced Lowell Catholic this season, or in fact for many seasons, but they are very familiar with their CAC rivals from Tyngsboro, having defeated them twice this season, by scores of 6-4 and 3-2. Tyngsboro enters the tournament on a role, having won three straight games to secure a bid.

Shawsheen coach Maureen Buckley sees a challenge for her squad regardless of whom they face.

"You have to ask do you want to play someone you know nothing about or a team that you know very well, but also knows you very well," Buckley said. "Tyngsboro is a very good team and that would be a battle of who makes the least mistakes because we know each other so well."

But if the Rams face Lowell Catholic Buckley knows her team will also have their hands full. The bottom line is that the Lady Rams will have to be at their best if they hope to advance.

"We have not faced Lowell Catholic in many years, but I know they've got a good team," Buckley said. "I have to worry about what my people do. If we play like we did on Monday (in a 4-1 over Bay Path) I would put us up against anyone."

While the Lady Rams are a young team with many new players they should not have tournament jitters entering this weekend's games, having played two tournament games earlier this week in the State Vocational Tournament.

On Monday afternoon at home, Shawsheen downed Bay Path High School of Charlton 4-1 in the game that Buckley referred to earlier, but on Tuesday they fell in a road game to Monty Tech of Fitchburg by a score of 8-0. The loss to Monty Tech was distressing for Buckley, as her team simply picked a bad time to play a very bad game.

"We haven't played that bad in I don't know how long," Buckley said. "It was one of those team efforts where everybody involved did not do well including the coach. I don't know if we were too high over yesterday (Monday) or if we were thinking too much about playing in the voke finals, but we did not play well."

Despite the loss Buckley was pleased with the way her team battled right to the final out.

"They didn't quit. They went up there and took their swings and even had two on in the seventh inning," Buckley said.

"They showed me again what I already knew about them, that they have a lot of heart and a lot of fight in them."

The win over Bay Path on the other hand was the polar opposite, as the Lady Rams executed exactly the way Buckley hopes to see in the state tournament.

"Bay Path was a good team but we did exactly what we wanted offensively and we made the plays defensively," Buckley said.

Freshman Kelli-Jo Deardoff had a fine day on the mound for the Lady Rams in her first exposure to tournament play, striking out nine while allowing only three hits.

"She did a great job and she did a great job today (Tuesday) as well," Buckley said. "We just did not make as many plays behind her. For her to go back to back like that with the heat on Monday and then today was a real credit to her."

Deardoff also had a pair of hits in each games, while Tewksbury resident Katie Hogan went 1-for-3 in both games, scoring a run against Bay Path.

Baseball

The Shawsheen baseball team will also open the post season at home, hosting a preliminary round game on Thursday afternoon. The 13th seeded Rams who finished with a 12-8 record on the regular season will host Chelsea (11-9) in a game that as of press time was scheduled for 4:00.

Thursday also happens to be prom night at Shawsheen and coach Kevin Bloom and other school officials were trying to move the starting time up by a couple of hours.

Regardless of what time the game is played, the task at hand remains the same for the Rams who will be looking to defeat Chelsea for the second time this season, having beaten them 3-1 at Chelsea on April 13.

The Rams certainly came out on top in the team's first meeting, but Bloom realizes that the Rams will be facing an entirely different team this time around.

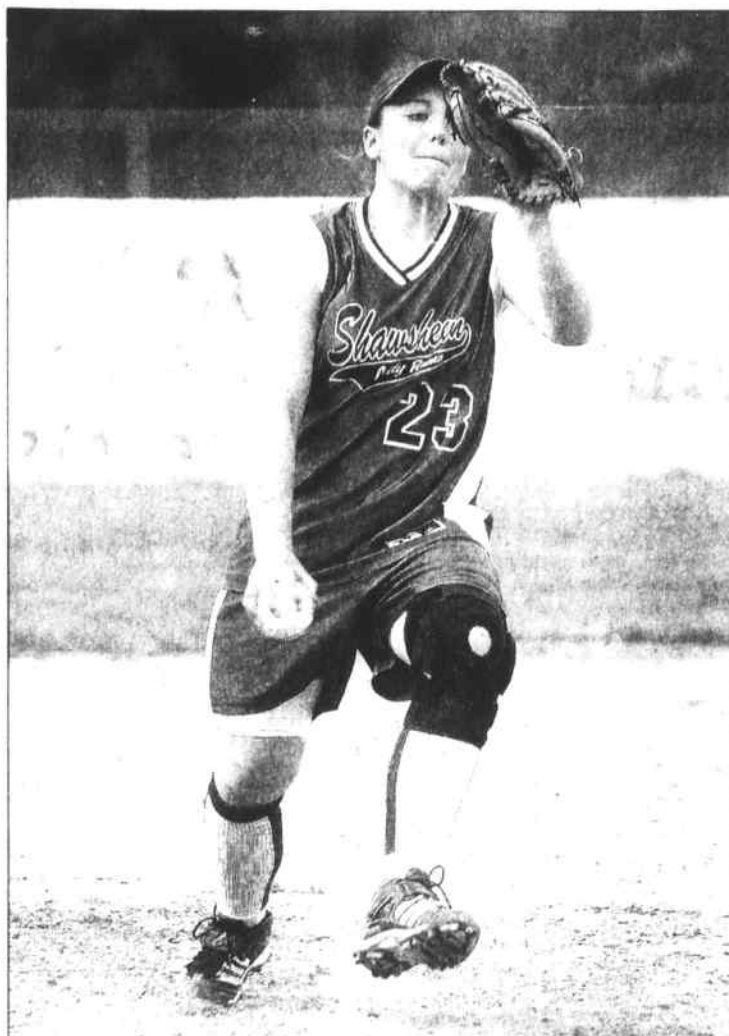

"Right now they are riding a seven game winning streak," Bloom said. "They were 4-9 at one point, but right now they are playing with lots of confidence. They are going to present a challenge for us."

Chelsea presents a challenge on many fronts for the Rams according to Bloom.

"They swing the bats well and are very aggressive, and they've got some guys who can run he bases real well," Bloom said. "On the mound they've got some good arms and once again they are playing with a lot of confidence right now. We will have to match that intensity."

This is the sixth year in a row the Rams have qualified for the state tournament, with five of those appearances coming under Bloom.

The winner of Thursday's game will travel to Ipswich on Saturday afternoon to take on the fourth seeded Tigers at 3:00 pm

Pitcher Kelli-Jo Deardoff lets a pitch go for the Shawsheen Tech Rams softball team in a recent CAC game. The Rams have drawn a first round bye as the Division 3 North sectional tournament begins this week.

(JoeBrownphotos.com)

The Rams would be very happy if the Chelsea game went as well as their final regular season game against Savio Prep last Saturday when they rolled to an 8-0 victory, snapping a three game losing streak.

Sophomore Anthony Miano of Tewksbury pitched the Rams to victory, throwing six shutout innings and striking out three while allowing just five hits. CAC All-Star Steve McIsaac of Wilmington led the way offensively for the Rams, going 2-for-3 with three RBI's, all of the RBI coming on a three run homer, his fifth of the season.

"Our focus going into the game was to play better and we did that," Bloom said. "We did not want to go into the tournament on a four game losing streak. More important than winning was to play better. If we had won but not played well, that would not have instilled confidence, but we were fortunate enough to get both the win and play well."

Brandon McCarthy added a pair of hits for the Rams as did Joel Mignault, while Mike Oliveira of Tewksbury and Rob McIsaac of Wilmington each had a hit and an RBI in the victory.

The fourth annual Shawsheen Valley Baseball School's "Summer Clinic" will be held at Shawsheen Tech on Cook Street in Billerica from June 26-June 30. Hours of the clinic each day are from 8:00 a.m. to Noon, and the clinic is open to players ages 7-16.

Participants will learn the fundamentals of hitting, base running, pitching, catching, fielding, bunting, sliding, weight training and conditioning. The clinic also features games each day, hitting station and daily prizes

The clinic will be led by Shawsheen Tech head coach Kevin Bloom, in his fifth year as head coach of the Rams, and has 16 years of high school coaching experience overall. Bloom has led the Rams to two CAC championships and a berth in two State Vocational Tournament title games. Other instructors include Swampscott head baseball coach T.J. Barif as well as Kevin McCarthy, head coach of 2004 Division 3 state champion Bishop Fenwick.

Cost of the Clinic is $120.00 per participant, which includes a T-shirt and a daily snack. (Family and Team discounts available - call for details)

For more information contact Kevin Bloom at 978-667-2111, ext. 744 or 781-598-0364.

Lacrosse

The Shawsheen lacrosse team saw their season come to an end on Tuesday afternoon with a 10-3 loss at Concord-Carlisle in the first round of the Division 2 East Tournament. With the loss the Rams finished the season at 10-7 overall under first year coach Chuck Baker, an impressive mark considering the number of young and first year players on the squad.

As good a season as it was in many ways for the Rams, the end was unfortunately somewhat predictable as once again after playing a Division 3 schedule all season they were moved up to Division 2 for the tournament and faced a program with a long history of lacrosse and simply could not compete.

"We were outmatched badly today," Baker said. "We weren't outplayed because our kids played with heart and did a great job on the physical part of the game, but they just had a big edge over us with their skills."

The Rams trailed 5-0 at the half and 10-0 in the fourth quarter before getting on the board with their three goals, two of them coming from senior Kyle Marzeoti and the other coming from fellow senior Dan Roy. Defenseman Craig Chestnut had an assist for the Rams as did fellow defensemen Matt Innis and Derek Allgaier.

The final score was obviously lopsided, but Baker was hardly disappointed with his team's effort.

"I was totally all right with the way we played and would have been totally all right if the final had been 10-0," Baker said. "They played their hearts out and that's all I can ask."

The end of the regular season was much better for the Rams as they won their final two games to get to the 10-win plateau.

Their 11-2 rout over Lynn Tech last Wednesday may have been somewhat expected as the Tigers are one of the weaker teams in the Mass Technical Lacrosse League, but the Rams were very impressive in their season ending 9-3 rout of Minuteman last Thursday was a much better indication of how well the Rams played during the final week of the season.

"I told the kids that I thought it was the first game all season where they played all four quarters," Baker said. "They sensed it too. They all came together and played their most complete game of the year. It was a good time to get it although I would like to have seen it a few games earlier."

Against Minuteman the Rams were led by Marzeoti's three goal as well as two goals and an assist from Roy. Sophomore Mike Arricale and Tewksbury freshman Shawn Donovan each had a goal and an assist.

With his first year as a head coach behind him Baker will look back fondly on this season and the players that made the winning record possible.

"I was very happy with the season," Baker said. "They gave me some fits early on with the one goal games and the overtime losses, but I had a great group of kids who were willing to run through a wall for their coach."

The Rams lose some key players with the most obvious two being their top two scorers in Marzeoti and Roy. Marzeoti had 38 goals and 18 assists for 56 points, while Roy had 31 goals and 12 assists for 43 points.

But despite losing some talented players, the future looks bright for the Rams who had 16 freshmen on this year's squad including goalie Ryan Smith of Tewksbury as well as the team's third leading scorer Shawn Donovan of Tewksbury (12G, 20A, 32 pts). Sophomore Mike Arricale was next in scoring for the Rams with 13 goals and 17 assists.

"That right there is a huge positive for us," Baker said. "We have 16 freshmen coming back from a team that had a very good season considering the number of young players we went into the year with."

Co-ed Tennis

The Shawsheen tennis team wrapped up their regular season last Thursday afternoon with a 5-2 loss to CAC rival Greater Lowell, but the loss did not diminish a fine season turned in by the Rams under first year coach J.P. Boriello.

The Rams finished the season with a record of 8-3 with all three losses coming to Greater Lowell, who finished the season with a record of 16-0. The Rams actually played very well against the Gryphons, but the depth and talent of their CAC rivals was too much to overcome.

"We played well and had a good finish to the season," Boriello said. "It would have been nice to beat them to end the season but I thought we competed well with them."

Senior Jared Palmer of Tewksbury did more than just compete, wrapping up his regular season career in style with a thrilling win over Pedro Figueroa by a score of 8-6, 1-6, 7-6 (10-8).

"Jared played really well. It was a tough win, but he pulled it out," Boriello said. "The second set was awesome. The whole team got really into it. It was a great way to end the league season."

The ram other victory on the day came from the first doubles team of junior Dan Metcalf and senior Rocco Puccio of Wilmington, who won by a score of 6-4, 6-0.

"They played really well throughout the match, but they really turned on the heat in that second set," Boriello said.

Overall finishing at 8-3 and second in the CAC did not quite meet Boriello's goal of winning the league, but he was still very happy with his team's performance this season.

"This being my first year coaching I thought the team played real well," Boriello said. "From Jared and Ken, Bailey, at the top of the singles to our doubles teams the kids did a great job."

As Boriello alluded to how great Palmer and Bailey played this season, it also comes with the realization that they will not be back next season. Boriello knows they will be difficult to replace.

"It's a big loss for us," Boriello said. "It's tough to lose your top two singles players like that. And losing Rocco Puccio in first doubles sets us back as well."

On the bright side for the Rams is the return of sophomore Breanne Kindred and freshman Kyle Stocki, both of Wilmington. Kindred played third singles this year, defeating many boys along the way, and Stocki did a great job at fourth singles.

"Breanne and Dan Metcalf should move to the top of the lineup and do real well," Boriello said. "And Kyle was right there as a freshman and should come back next year with even more confidence and playing even better."

Town Crier Sports Staff Tournament Predictions

The Town Crier's Sports Editor Jamie Pote, and staff writer Mike Ippolito, make the bold predictions of the winners of this week's high school baseball and softball North sectional winners in each of the three divisions.

Pote's Predictions

Division 1 Baseball
Sectional Final: St. John's Prep vs Andover
Sectional Winner: Andover
Remark: Always take a public school over a Catholic School (no offense to Wilmington resident Steve Peterson, a key member of the St. John's Prep team).

Division 2 Baseball
Sectional Final: Reading vs

Tewksbury
Sectional Winner: Reading
Remark: Reading upsets Danvers; The winner of the Belmont/Tewksbury game could ride the wave on that side of the bracket.

Division 3 Baseball
Sectional Final: Stoneham vs St. Mary's
Sectional Winner: St. Mary's
Remark: On one side of the bracket is Newburyport, Ipswich, North Reading, Lynnfield and Stoneham. I take my chances with Spartans in Division 3. St. Mary's seems like the best team in the other side.

Division 1 Softball
Sectional Final: Reading vs Woburn

Sectional Winner: Reading
Remark: Lowell has been too inconsistent, and Reading seems like a team that can beat them.

Division 2 Softball
Sectional Final: Concord-Carlisle vs Tewksbury
Sectional Winner: Concord-Carlisle
Remark: Tewksbury has a pretty good side of the bracket and if they play as they have all season they could make a long run. Concord-Carlisle's run started three years ago when they defeated Tewksbury in the tournament.

Division 3 Softball
Sectional Final: North Reading vs St. Mary's

Sectional Winner: North Reading
Remark: The best game could be a meeting between North Reading and Austin Prep in the semi-finals with the winner winning the entire state championship.

Baseball
Division 1 North
Sectional Final: Arlington vs Andover
Sectional Champion: Arlington
Remark - Spy Ponders upset undefeated Boston English on their way to final against defending sectional champs.

Remark: With Katie Hebert on the mound, it's hard to bet against defending state champs.

Division 2 North

Remark: In a battle between MVC and Cape Ann League champs, the Redmen come out on top.

Division 3 North

Yankees slide past Tigers in Wilmington Little League

Major League Baseball
Yankees 6, Tigers 1

While the Boston Red Sox and NY Yankees were clashing heads again last week (May 23) at Fenway Park, the Yankees and Red Sox were doing the same thing in Wilmington Major League Little League action. It wound up a sweep for the Yankees as the Wilmington Yanks prevailed 6-1 at Rotary Park, while Doug Mirabelli had all kinds of problems with Tim Wakefield's knuckler at Fenway and NY dumped Boston 7-5.

At Rotary a pair of promising 11 year olds took the mound in this game, Anthony Scurto for the Yankees and Justin Ferreira for the Sox. Both pitched well but Scurto came out on top by tossing a complete game victory. Anthony struck out eight while giving up only two singles, one by Tyler Warner and the other by Matt Pickett. The Red Sox did have him trouble a couple of times with walks and a couple of hit batters but he wiggled but he made the big pitches when he had to.

Red Sox starter Justin Ferreira also pitched well but it was a four run third inning that was the difference in the game. After Trevor Foley off the inning with a walk, Zack Shepard had a big RBI double and Dan Vigneau followed that up with an RBI single (his first of two hits on the night). Back to back doubles off the bats of Vin Scifo and Pat Magliano completed the Yankees four run rally. A couple of Sox errors hurt Justin in the inning too. Other Yankees with base hits were Anthony Capozzi, Mike Brent, Cam Owens, and brothers Mike and Steve Ciampa.

For the Red Sox, other than the hits by Tyler Warner and Matt Pickett, Nick Luise worked his way on base twice via the walk, and Jeff Favuzza had a stolen base after being hit by a pitch. Also, Tommy See made a highlight reel catch in center field.

Yankees 3, A's 2

Two of the leagues best pitchers hooked up in a classic pitchers duel over Memorial Day weekend when the Yankees and A's met for the second time this year. Vinny Scifo of the Yanks and Timmy McCarthy of the A's renewed their friendly rivalry for the second time this season and everyone knew a low scoring close game would be on tap.

The two also hooked up in the opening game of the season and battled to a 2-2 deadlock after six innings. Both had to be replaced on the hill after six and the A's wound up winning in extra innings.

This time it was the Yankees who would prevail by a 3-2 score. It was a scoreless game until the top of the 4th when the Yankees broke through. It was an infield hit by Stevie Ciampa that sparked the rally. Brother Mike followed with a single then Scifo helped himself by booming a double to right center to score one. Mike Brent followed with an RBI single for a 2-0 lead.

The Yanks scratched out a huge third run in the top of the fifth. Cam Owens started it off with a beauty of a bunt single. He moved to 2nd on a ground out, then scored when Dan Vigneau's grounder was thrown wildly past first. That would turn out to be the winning run.

Just when it looked like Scifo and the Yankees might cruise to victory the resilient A's showed why they're one of the top teams in the league. Dan Keane legged out an infield hit which was followed by a Marcus Cole walk. Steve Halas followed that with an infield hit of his own.

The A's had bases loaded and no outs with the heart of the order coming up. Tim McCarthy hit a hard grounder to third which was turned into a fielders choice with a force at second. That made it 3-1 with one out and first and third for the A's.

Steve Colangelo then hit a sacrifice fly to center (nice catch by Dan Vigneau) to make it a 3-2 game. McCarthy then stole second which put the tying run in scoring position. However Scifo left him stranded there by striking out his 13th batter of the game. McCarthy finished up by whiffing seven Yankees.

Others with base hits for the A's were Phil Lentini and Steve Colangelo. Lentini had a pair as he roped a long double to right and a hard single to left. Trevor Foley of the Yankees also had a booming double as he whacked one to the gap in left center.

Twins 7, Red Sox 5

The Twins, who are sponsored by Extra Innings, defeated the Red Sox, sponsored by Rotary International, by a 7-5 score. Pitching six strong innings for the Twins was Steven Reynolds. Steve struck-out nine and only walked one. Nate Grimley was the hitting star with three hits.

Also getting hits for the Twins were Ryan Kennedy, Sam Silva, and Dan Pothier. Hitters for the Red Sox were Tom See, Brendon McDonough, and a home run by Tyler Warner.

Twins 8, White Sox 3

The Twins scored two runs in the first inning and never looked back. Steven Reynolds and Nate Grimley each doubled and were followed by a single by Dan Pothier. The Twins scored 4 more runs in the fourth inning to clinch the win. Hitters in this inning were James Wilkinson, Nate Grimley, Chris Newton, and Sam Silva. Mike Daley had two outfield assists as he threw three runners out at second base.

Hitters for the White Sox were Ryan Fiendel, Matt Boutorous, and John Keough. The Twins are sponsored by Extra Innings and the White Sox are sponsored by Reading Trophy. The Twins got four very well pitched innings from Mark Connolly.

A League Baseball

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 0

A three run inside-the park home run by Joey Hydorn in the first inning combined with shutout pitching led the Sign Fabricators Brewers to a 4-0 victory over the AAMCO Transmission Blue Jays in a well pitched game by both sides at Glen Rd. field.

The three Brewers pitchers, Lucas Garrity, Eric Grabar and Evan Raffi, threw six shutout innings, combining for 15 strikeouts while walking only three Blue Jays batters. Lucas Garrity, who had two hits in the game, knocked in the other run for the Brewers while Evan Raffi and Andrew Lobao also had a hit each.

The three Blue Jays pitchers, Johnny Reynolds, Nick Cimaglio and Patrick Finn, also pitched well, combining for nine strikeouts and allowing only one Brewers run after the first inning. Johnny Mack, Brian Moran, Peter Amato and Nick Cimaglio all had base hits for the Blue Jays.

Wilmington Under 14-5 girls soccer team participates in weekend tournament

The Wilmington GU14-5 soccer team hosted Wakefield Monday night May 22nd at Shawshen Field for their Memorial Day Weekend make-up game.

The girls came out flat and were swarmed by an aggressive Wakefield front six. If not for the hard work of Wilmington's defense and the excellent goal-keeping of Chelsey Westerberg Wilmington would have been in an early hole. Stopper Fiona Gately, defenders Kaitlyn McGuire and Lori Fletcher and sweeper Kelly Flaherty had their hands full to say the least.

The girls withstood the first few minutes and were able to get their game back on track and apply some pressure of their own. Lori Fletcher sent a screaming shot just over the cross bar. Meaghan Souza made a nice rush up the right side, passed to Haley Robarge who set up Samantha Reed but, Samantha's shot went just wide. Shortly after on a throw-in Samantha found Alyssa Fiorentino open to the right of the net and Alyssa took a beautiful high shot into the top far corner for Wilmington's first goal.

Next up was a breakaway for Jenny Garrard. Jenny's shot went just wide of the right post. Kristina Tummino had some nice rushes up the left side with booming crosses and shots on net. Wilmington had several shots on net and on one Alyssa Fiorentino was there to jump on a loose rebound and bang in her second goal of the game.

Not long after Wilmington was awarded a free kick and Jenny

Garrard sent a nice high shot on goal, Meaghan Souza got her head on it and sent it just over the net.

In the second half Wilmington kept the pressure on. Kelly Flaherty worked the ball to Haley Robarge to Courtney See and Courtney put a nice high shot of her own into the far top corner.

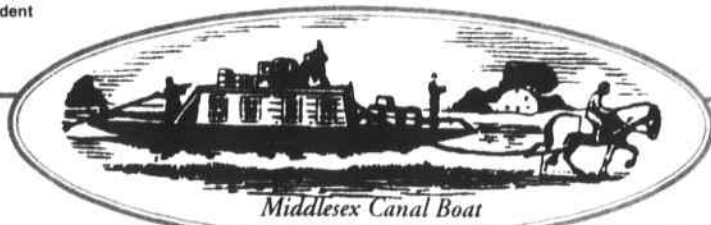

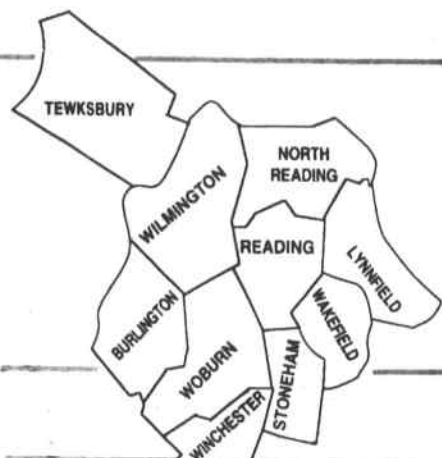

Later Courtney made a nice rush down the left side and sent an excellent left footed cross to a streaking Heather Kealos on the right side but, it was just out of her reach. Kelly Flaherty and Kristina Tummino were combining on some nice passing working the ball up the right side. Meanwhile Kristen Keller was using her excellent ball skills in the middle at center forward.

Wakefield was putting the pressure on and they were awarded a free-kick. Heather Kealos and Samantha Reed made a wall to defend the shot Heather took a blistering shot off of the head but, hung in there and played tough. Lori Fletcher was all over the field on defense breaking up all of Wakefield threats on the left side. The entire team worked very hard to preserve a shut out. Meaghan Souza was there to stop all shots as second half keeper and Chelsey Westerberg was excellent at stopper controlling the ball in the middle.

The girls kept Wakefield off of the scoreboard and earned a solid 3-0 victory. Excellent team victory girls! Keep up the hard work and let's finish the season strong!

Burlington resident heads up area postal operations

Francescucci sets new goals for 49 post offices in eastern Mass.

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Burlington resident Nicolas Francescucci has already started to meet some of the goals he set when he set after being named as the manager of Postal Operations in the 018-019 Zip Code areas of Massachusetts.

Although not named to the post by United States Postal Service (USPS) District Manager John W. "Mike" Powers until late March, Francescucci has been the acting manager since November.

"I'd like to improve customer service across my area," Francescucci said. "I also want to ensure the safety and provide a comfortable work environment for all my employees."

As to improving service, that is already well on the way, at least in the Middlesex East readership areas. Postal stations in eight of the ten communities covered by Middlesex East have received the prestigious Five Star Award for the past two quarters.

Burlington, North Reading, Reading, Tewksbury, Wakefield, Woburn, Wilmington and Winchester received it in the fourth quarter of last year and again in the first quarter of this year.

Winners of the award are nominated by the customers for quality of customer service and customer interaction with the letter carriers. "This is a pretty significant honor," Francescucci said. "The Postal Service is made up of 80 districts throughout the country and only eight districts have received the honor."

He noted that 565 post offices throughout the country have received the Five Star honor. However, 101 were in Massachusetts and 44 of those are in the Eastern Massachusetts Postal District.

"We have one of the highest concentrations (of award winners) here," Francescucci proudly boasted. In a more humble tone, he added, "I don't take credit for that. The credit goes to those people that do the right thing in the field."

However, a common adage states that leadership comes from the top. In that regard Francescucci believes in rewarding his employees with breakfasts, lunches, gift certificates and in some cases even cash awards, every chance he gets.

"I've signed off for more recognition awards in the last few months," Francescucci said. "We recognize our employees in the district offices all the time."

He added, "We do a good job at recognition and I'm proud of that."

Among those that have been especially recognized are Wilmington Letter Carriers Gina Riley and Kathleen Hall, who were both recognized for heroic acts in the community during their tour of duty and were given "Certificates of Commendation."

Francescucci relates, "Ms. Riley found a three year old boy wandering the streets shoeless and without a coat on a cold day in February, turned the boy over to the Wilmington Police who found the home he wandered out of several streets from home."

"The second was Ms. Hall who prevented a home from burning when she noticed smoke coming out of a home on her route and called the Fire Dept. They found a faulty furnace that was moments away from igniting."

After 21 years in the postal service, Francescucci is definitely a manager who has hands on experience in all facets of the field operations. He started as a letter carrier in Boston's Roxbury neighborhood 21 years ago, and shortly after was moved to Boston's downtown station.

"I took the test and I got a great score," Francescucci recalled. "When they called, I was between jobs and I took the job as a letter carrier out of Roxbury Post Office."

Over the years he has moved up the ladder from letter carrier to supervisory positions, starting at Boston's Back Bay Post Office.

He was then named as the manager of the Kenmore Square Post Office in 1997 and then transferred to Lexington as a manager in 2000. In 2004 Francescucci was promoted to be the Post Master of the Andover Post Office. While there, the Burlington resident was asked to be the officer in charge (acting Post Master) of the Woburn office.

He held those jobs until the position he is now in was posted. "I applied for the position and was accepted by Mike Powers and Senior Post Office Manager John Cantwell," Francescucci said.

As manager of the 018-019 Postal Zones, Francescucci is responsible for 49 post offices in Eastern Massachusetts. He monitors the service provided, the safety of the employees, and a budget of $2.6 million per-week, or an estimated $135 million annually.

Other job duties include meeting with union presidents and planning strategies for the future success of the postal service in this area. He is also in charge of a motorized fleet of 1,200 vehicles in this area.

For people who are concerned about the price they are paying for gasoline, Francescucci puts it into perspective. He notes that for every cent the price of gasoline increases, the United States Postal Service pays out another $8 million annually.

For this reason the Postal Service is going to purchase hybrid vehicles which run on gas and electricity. Francescucci said the new vehicles will be coming to Massachusetts, but no date has been set as yet.

All of this from a person who originally went to school as a design engineer.

Over the years, Francescucci has seen many changes in postal operations. Among these, automation and computerization of services have been the biggest changes.

"Now we process 95 percent of all letter mail through automation and send it right out into the system," Francescucci said.

"X-MEN III: THE LAST STAND"

GRADE: **

Despite its title, this isn't the end of the "X-Men" series. If the weekend box office numbers of $107 million indicate anything, in a Hollywood hurting for ticket sales, that's simply too strong a debut to kill off a franchise, and the film's finale is the perfect set-up for more.

If you enjoyed the first two "X-Men" films, you won't want to miss this. If you're a newbie to the series, this isn't the place to start.

In this installment, mutants and humans still seem wary of each other. Suddenly, a "cure" is announced to "suppress the mutant gene." And what seems to be barely suppressed contempt suddenly threatens to burst into war.

Many of the mutants, including Storm (Halle Berry), Wolverine (Hugh Jackman) and the newly introduced Beast (Kelsey Grammer) don't appreciate the idea of a "cure." Others, such as the despondent Rogue (Anna Paquin), who cannot touch people without killing them, seek to have their powers removed.

In the last movie, one of the X-Men, Jean Grey (Famke Janssen), was killed. But she's back as Phoenix, whose powers are stronger than ever and whose suppression of them is almost non-existent.

Brett Ratner directed this installment, taking over for Bryan Singer (who is busy with "Superman Returns"), and while this film doesn't contain the character development and emotional conflicts that the second movie did, it brims with action.

The movie does feel a bit crowded, which may have to do more with the short running time (107 minutes) more than anything else. There's a lot going on here, which prevents a major focus on any of the characters.

But what it lacks in character development it makes up for in spectacle, including a beautiful sequence that involves the destruction of the Golden Gate Bridge.

By the way, all fans take note: be sure to stay through the credits. The revelation you see at the end before the credits isn't really the big "reveal." That comes after the credits, and is worth the wait.

"THE DA VINCI CODE"

GRADE: **

Based on Dan Brown's best-selling novel, "The Da Vinci Code" spins a web of murder, deceit and a fictional conspiracy that, if exposed, could shake Christianity to its very foundations. Throw in a quest for the Holy Grail as well, and you have the makings of what should be a fairly decent summer thriller.

Think again. A convoluted plot bogs down "The Da Vinci Code", and requires too much audience attention. And director Ron Howard's meticulous approach - not to mention the scholarly subject matter - robs the story of much of its tension. Ideally, this sort of movie should cruise along at express-train speed, but "Da Vinci's" plods along, wrapping of 2,000 years of religious teachings in two and a half hours.

The story begins with a murder in the halls of Paris' Louvre Museum, and the mysterious symbols surrounding the body of the victim, a renowned curator.

Harvard symbolist

Robert Langdon (Tom Hanks) happens to be lecturing in Paris - which makes him a suspect in the mind of detective Bèzu Fache (Jean Reno).

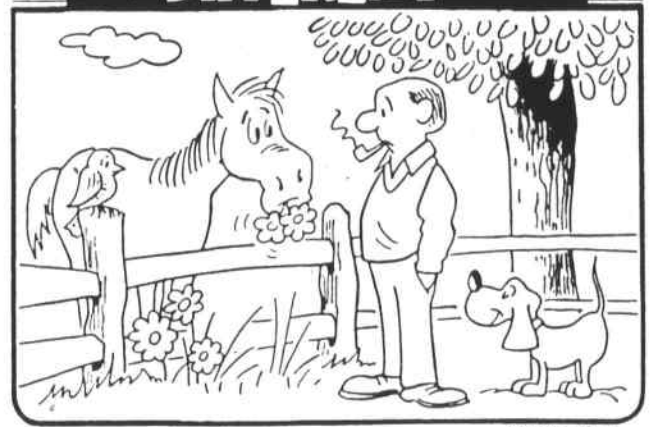

Lucky for Robert that police cryptologist Sophie Neveu (Audrey Tautou) also arrives on the scene - and helps Robert evade certain arrest.

They uncover a plot involving two clandestine religious organizations - one charged with preserving a centuries-old secret, the other with bumping off those who know it.

The shadowy trail leads Robert and Sophie from Paris to London and points in between, as they run from a murderous monk (Paul Bettany).

The book by author Dan Brown that the film is based on was a fun read, but the big screen version is too long. The end result is a painting that at times is pretty to look at, but not up to the high standards of Da Vinci himself.

"POSEIDON"

GRADE: **

Poseidon is a 'leave your brain at the door and go along for the ride' summer movie, and doesn't try to disguise itself as any type of drama. It is what it is, and

Local group "The Jolly Rogues" at Beijing Arts Festival

The dynamic, unique, lively, versatile 18th and 19th Century historical music group "The Jolly Rogues" were invited to perform at the "Meet in Beijing Arts Festival" along with other venues in The People's Republic of China from 28 April to 7 May. They were the only American musical participant at this pop culture event and consider it a singular honor to be so selected.

"The Jolly Rogues" (5 male musicians/singers) along with the some-times accompanying "The Ladies Remembered" perform music of the 18th and early 19th Century (ballads, tavern tunes, children's ditties, sea songs, shanties, popular songs) related to the nation's beginnings, while always attired in clothing of that period.

They began as a volunteer group "The Hartwell Players" in 1989 to interpret colonial music for Minute Man National Historical Park, Concord, where they were all members of The Guild of Historic Interpreters. "The Rogues" formed as a professional group in 2001 and made its first appearance in Concord.

Since then they have played music with its unique manner of presentation throughout New England and New York in addition to tours of England (2004 and 2005); numerous BBC appearances and benefits for historical sites, Wales (2004) and Germany (2005, Baltic Sea Festival). They were excited at the prospect of taking their heritage, culture, history and music to the people of China.

The Festival was co-hosted by The Ministry of Culture, People's Republic of China, The People's Government of Beijing Municipality, and The People's Republic of China.

Administration of Radio, Film and Television

In preparation for the upcoming Summer Olympics to be held in China, their Olympic Committee will also be involved this year.

They have been in regular contact with representatives of the Ministry and the Festival. Aside performances at Chaoyang Park (including opening ceremonies) with other musical groups and dance troupes. They shall also appeared several times at a popular "Irish Bar" in Peking near the University and at numerous other venues currently being arranged by their hosts. It is expected that hundreds of thousands of people will see them perform over nine days.

The members of the group perform musically as an avocation while holding positions in higher education (dean), municipal government, federal government (Park Service), environmental issues), tree farming, insurance and tele-marketing.

They hail from Concord, Wilmington, Westford and Reading. It is their understanding that the People's Republic will provide venues, hotels/accommodations, meals and ground transportation during the visit.

They will be responsible for air transport costs from Boston to Newark, NJ to Beijing and return. They shall not receive any payment for the performances and it is their desire not to obtain financial assistance from any aspect of government (state or federal) in order to insure that the trip is a purely cultural and people-to-people exchange. One of their international concepts is "peace through music".

Voke graduates are now sought

WAKEFIELD The North-east Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School in Wakefield is now seeking graduates who would like to become involved in an alumni association.

The Alumni Association, which is now in its formation stages, would be responsible for reaching out to fellow graduates and helping to plan an alumni recognition gala and awards night in October.

To get the celebration started, a kick-off gathering was held on Wednesday, May 10, and the event served as an opportunity for graduates to socialize with fellow alumni while hearing more about the alumni association and future activities.

The goal of the association, according to Northeast Metro Tech Principal Jay Crowley, is to create a strong

Tiger inimitable of Stoneham

"The SHS Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony Saturday, April 1, held special significance to each of the inductees, but will certainly carry added import for former Stoneham Independent News and Sports Editor and inductee Frank 'Tiger' Burns," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"That evening marked the 57th anniversary of Burn's first day of employment with the Independent, a career that saw Stoneham through an amazing amount of change in his 41 years of employment. Burns, a life-long Stoneham resident, was there to chronicle the changing face of Stoneham over five decades in a weekly labor of love called the newspaper."

"I loved sports and I loved to write, so working at the Independent was a natural for me," said Burns. "I used to do everything, though, from writing news stories, to writing wedding announcements to writing sports, so there wasn't a lot of time to dilly-dally."

"The baseball teams with Tony DeTeso and the hockey teams with Doc Gordon were great back then winning their league championship in the early 1950's and Stoneham winning back-to-back hockey GBI championships in 1952 and 1953 under Gordon," added Burns. "Buddy Chambers was on both of those teams and boy was that kid an unbelievable player. He could stickhandle in a phone booth."

"True to his stick-by-his-guns nature, Burns was honored with being inducted but wanted to make sure each and every deserving athlete was also honored along with him....

"It was always about the kids," said Burns. "I covered sports for 41 years, so it would be too difficult to have a favorite team or a favorite player. I enjoyed them all...."

"Burns retired from the Independent in 1990 after 41 years of wins, losses, championships and graduations, and continues to make his home in Stoneham...."

Splashdown in Reading

"Beginning in May 2006, the Town of Reading will begin to purchase drinking water from the MWRA," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"This will occur annually from May through October. The supplemental use of MWRA water is solely to help reduce the stress on the Ipswich River. Drinking water will also continue to be produced from the Reading Louanis Water Treatment Plant."

"The chronology of events leading to the supplemental use of MWRA water began as a recommendation of the 1999 Ad Hoc Water Supply Committee and approval by Town Meeting in November of 2003. Filings and approvals were received from the Department of Environmental Protection, Water Resources Commission, Legislature, Governor, and final approval by the MWRA Board of Directors on November 16, 2005."

"During the transitional period there will be changes in the flow patterns in the distribution system that may cause temporary discoloration due to the disturbance of sediment in the pipes. Please be assured the water is safe to drink, even if there is some discoloration. Should this occur, we recommend that users do not wash clothes until the water has cleared up."

"The Water Department has implemented steps to reduce the potential for discoloration."

"There could be a noticeable difference in the water for residents who will be receiving MWRA water as compared to water produced at the Reading Louanis Water Treatment Plant. Some homes will also receive a blend of the two waters, and it is not possible to identify how much is being supplied from each source.

"We appreciate your cooperation as we work toward reducing the stress on the Ipswich River...."

Great catch for Wilmington

"Twenty years ago, a new day dawned for stray dogs in Wilmington when Ellen Davis was sworn in as animal control officer," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"A few months earlier, Mary Tedesco had been feeding a stray dog at her home on Clark Street. Then one day the dog was gone. She called the dogcatcher and asked if he had picked up the dog. He denied it."

"Mary knew that something was not right. The dogcatcher lived right around the corner from her, and she knew him. She didn't believe him."

"So she drove to the dog pound which was at the end of McDonald Road. It was a long, low building on the Canals farm. The building was locked, but she could hear the dog inside. She looked in a window and could see her friend."

"Then she looked in the dumpster, and it was not a pretty sight."

"She called the dogcatcher, and again he denied having the dog. But she persisted, knowing that the dog's life depended on her."

"She and a friend from Reading, Joan Sheehan, began a campaign, just trying to save that one dog. They went to the selectmen, who investigated. Eventually, they produced numbers asserting that of the last 88 dogs the dogcatcher had picked up, 84 had been killed."

"The dogcatcher would hold dogs at the pound for the maximum of ten days, collecting a $3 per dog per day fee, paid by the county."

"Some 14 years earlier, the Lowell Sun, did an in-depth investigation of Middlesex County government. Two reporters combed through

'CENTIMENTAL JOURNEYS

'The figure we can work with' (Woburn)

"Mayor Thomas McLaughlin reportedly mandated the city's School Committee to whittle its proposed FY'07 budget down by approximately $576,000," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"According to School Supt. Dr. Carl Batchelder and School Committee Chairwoman Patricia Chisholm, the Mayor and school officials reached an amicable agreement on a bottom line, FY'07 spending plan of $40,600,211."

"Originally pitching a draft budget of approximately $41.2 million, the school department was hoping for a 5 percent increase in funding over current year expenditures."

"The newest figure reportedly set by McLaughlin assumes a 4.5 percent jump in costs. Batchelder and school administrators have attributed the rise in spending to soaring uncontrollable expenses such as health insurance, utilities, out-of-district SPED tuitions, and already negotiated employee raises.

"He's looked at other budgets and departments in City Hall and he's drawn a line in the sand," said Chisholm of McLaughlin's decision.

"My understanding is that figure is not something that's going to place an unfair burden on the taxpayers. And if that's the figure we can work with, I'm all for it," added School Committee member Denis Russell.

"Despite the loss of $576,000 in requested funding, School Committee members appeared relatively pleased with the news, as more than a few educational board members believed they could live within that figure."

"In fact, the educational board later increased that budget gap by $50,000 after authorizing an increase to the technology budget - which means the school department will actually plug an approximate $625,000 hole..."

'Option 1' (Burlington)

"The School Committee meeting resulted in the expected and the unexpected when the board made official its decision regarding the facilities option," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"As expected, the board voted unanimously to adopt Option 1, which is construction of a larger, 30-classroom Memorial School in front of the current building, which was opened in February of 1955 and has 18 rooms."

"Two other aspects of the option, targeted to be accomplished within three years, would be extensive renovations to the Marshall Simonds Middle School, and capital repairs and rehabilitation work at the town's four other school buildings."

"What was unexpected is that the board voted unanimously on a warrant article to seek at May Town Meeting the projected entire cost of construction of the school - $26,110,000. This would include funds for the design study. It would not cover the costs of the second and third parts of Option 1."

"Initially, the board was going to seek only money for a design study."

PHILLIPS ACADEMY SUMMER INTERVIEWS

Phillips Academy is conducting interviews now through September 4 for local students planning to apply for admission to the 2007-08 school year. Each applicant is required to have a personal interview as part of the admission process.

In response to an unprecedented demand last year for fall interviews, the office of Admission is encouraging local families to take advantage of their proximity to Phillips Academy and come to campus during the summer for an interview.

Interviews and student-guided tours are being offered from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday and Friday, and from 9 - 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. These visits provide time to learn about the school and to speak with admission counselors and student tour guides.

All summer tour guides are current day students who are eager to share their perspectives and experiences. The Office of Admission will host two open houses (one late fall, the other in mid-January 2007) so local families can visit while school is in session.

To schedule an interview and tour, please call the Phillips Academy Office of Admission at 978-749-4050. For more information about the admission process, call Lisa Joel, associate dean of admission at 978-749-4053.

NATIVE AMERICAN ART GOES ON DISPLAY

A stunning selection of Native American art will be on display at the Peabody Essex Museum beginning June 24. "Intersections, Native American Art in a New Light" is a new exhibition drawn primarily from the museum's collections and features more than 70 works, including never before seen objects, such as a 17th century bejeweled Incan dance crown and a David Bradley monprint (2000).

In addition to headwork, textiles, ceramics and drawings, the exhibition includes paintings and an installation by Nora Naranjo-Morse (Santa Clara Pueblo). Diverse cultures - from the Penobscot in the Northeast and Haida of British Columbia, to the Pueblos of the American Southwest and Incas of Peru - are represented.

"Intersections focuses on Connections - between the traditional and the personal, the present and the past, the native and non-native, and indigenous and Western media art emphasizes the creative possibilities and the dynamic tensions that arise from aesthetic, cultural and political influences," says PEM guest curator Laurie Beth Kalb, who co-curated the exhibition with PEM assistant curator of Native American art, Karen Kramer. Artist Nora Naranjo-Morse also served as a curatorial consultant. The exhibition, which covers this 1600s to the present, will remain on view indefinitely.

STILL TIME TO HOST A FRESH AIR CHILD

Summer vacation, that special time of year for all children, is not far away. Thanks to many families in and around 13 northeastern states and Canada, close to 5,000 New York City children from low income neighborhoods enjoy a 2 week vacation to the homes of volunteer host families each summer through the Fresh Air fund.

The Fund is currently seeking more families to give inner-city children a 2 week vacation this summer. By volunteering as a host family for The Fund's Friendly Town program, you can help give a child a break from the hot and crowded city streets.

"My kids just ran out the back door but our Fresh Air child stopped to put on his shoes and socks. I told him he could just run along with the kids. He looked at me with a strange expression on his face and then I realized he never had the opportunity to just go outside and play in a backyard," explains a current Fresh Air host.

This year, The Fund needs more host families to celebrate its 130th Anniversary of sharing the joys of suburban and small town life like smelling fresh flowers, casting a fishing pole for the first time, or hearing crickets chirp. The friendship that develops between hosts and their Fresh Air visitors often lasts a lifetime.

There are no financial requirements for hosting a Fresh Air child. Hosts can select the gender and approximate age of their visitor. First-time visitors are 6 to 12 years old, and reinvented youngsters may participate in The Friendly Town program through age 18.

To learn more about hosting a Fresh Air child this summer, call Mary Carroll at 978-975-4182 or The Fresh Air Fund at 800-367-0003. www.freshair.org

LEWIS AND CLARK EXHIBIT EXTENDED

The Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology at Harvard University announces the extension of its exhibition From Nation to Nation: Examining Lewis and Clark's Indian Collection, scheduled to close Dec. 31, will remain on display one additional year until Dec. 2007.

From Nation to Nation commemorates the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, the Corps of Northwest Discovery as part of the U.S. national celebration throughout 2004-2006.

As the repository of the only remaining Native American objects acquired by the Corps of Northwest Discovery during their epic trek, the Peabody Museum displays some 35 objects of the period including the newly rediscovered bear claw necklace. The objects they later presented to President Thomas Jefferson, the architect of the historic expedition and to the Peale Museum in Philadelphia, were received as diplomatic and chiefly gifts, or simply as customary trade items.

The exhibit conveys the nature and flavor of Lewis and Clark's relationships with the Indian peoples they encountered. The exhibition is complemented by the volume Arts of

Post Office from S-1

He added, "There have been huge changes in retail with the addition of automated postal centers in 19 post offices in Eastern Massachusetts."

Locally these automated machines are situated in the lobbies of the post offices in Burlington, Reading, Wakefield and Woburn.

According to Francescucci, by logging on to www.usps.com, people can literally receive many of the postal services right on their own home computers. Services provided include purchase of stamps, printing of labels, scheduling pick-ups of mail and packages for delivery and even purchasing gift items and greeting cards to send to loved ones.

UNITED STATES
POSTAL SERVICE™

As far as personal challenges he has seen, Francescucci believes that his worst experience in the post office was when he first became a supervisor. However, now that he has the experience, he voiced his opinion that this new job will be the best experience he will have.

Francescucci was born in Boston's North End but moved to Burlington at age 11 with his mother and late father. His mother still lives in Burlington as does Francescucci, who now lives with his wife and their two children Angelica and Nicholas.

Filing a garden with flower power

Flower power is at the heart of countless gardens and with the range of flowering varieties available today, gardeners have an array of choices.

So what flowers are gardeners giving the green thumbs up to? According to garden store owners, people are looking for plants that they can count on to bloom beautifully for months with minimal care. That's where certain types of new plants come in.

Gardeners can now add flower power to their landscapes, patios and entryways with a minimal amount of work. Here's a closer look at two of the top picks.

• A Touch of Frost: Diamond Frost produces delicate grey-green foliage with tiny lace-like blossoms that create a carpet of pure white.

Yet despite its delicate appearance, this plant is tough. It has an exceptional heat and drought tolerance and requires little care to look its best. The flower, from Proven Winners, thrives in sun and partial shade, stands 12 to 18 inches high and blooms non-stop for six months.

Its compact size makes it a good choice for containers or the front of a flowerbed and its nearly unstoppable flower power and airy form make it an excellent alternative to baby's breath, which tends to fade very quickly. Plus, the flower can be an indoor performer too. Small pots in a window that receives lots of sunshine can prove to be wonderful indoor plants.

Diamond Frost has received rave reviews. It was selected as the U.K.'s 2005 Plant of the Year and was named a top pick by the Dallas Arboretum and Ohio State.

• Bright Lights - Also from Proven Winners, Broadway Lights feature huge Shasta Daisy flowers that burst out of the garden.

This plant, which blooms beginning in July, opens with delightful canary-yellow flowers that turn butter yellow and then a creamy white as it matures. Under cooler conditions, the flower color remains more yellow.

The plant's emerging flowers reach 16 to 20 inches in height, creating a beautiful mound of breakthrough color blooms atop its rich green foliage. Sturdy, reliable and easy to grow, this plant prefers full sunlight and will produce profuse blooms until frost.

For more information on where to purchase or how to grow these flowers, go online and visit www.provenwinners.com/diamonds.

These plants are also available from White Flower Farm, by calling 800-503-9624 or visit www.whiteflowerfarm.com

Grubs can devastate lawns

-Damage most severe in late summer

You can get the better of grubs, although they're among the most damaging lawn pests in the nation.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, Americans spend millions of dollars a year replacing the lawns which grubs destroy. They're small white insects with a small brown head curled into a "c" shape.

White grubs live a few inches under the lawn's surface and feed on the roots of grass. Grubs are the larvae or juvenile stage of various types of scarab beetles, including Japanese Beetles, chafers and June and May beetles.

"When grubs are close to the surface, starlings and crows, as well as moles, shrews and skunks, can be seen digging them up because they're a favorite food source," explained Bayer Advanced lawn expert Lance Wilhelm, author of the book Lawn Care for Dummies.

Identifying grub damage can be tricky. Look for:

- A general thinning and weakening of the lawn;
- A wilted or dried out look to the grass, even when the soil is moist;
- Large brown irregular patches of grass;
- Large pieces of dead turf that can be easily torn up in one piece like carpet.

"Grub damage is most severe in late summer, but problems can begin as early as mid to late spring. Grubs are easiest to control when they are young, so prevention is key by taking action starting in late May, early June," Wilhelm explained.

One preventative measure involves Bayer Advanced Season-Long Grub Control, which contains Merit. It's the only active ingredient guaranteed to kill all common types of grubs and it's the number one choice among turf professionals. Simply apply the substance to your lawn and water it in to form a protective zone against grubs that lasts throughout the summer.

If your lawn is already under attack, Bayer Advanced 24-hour Grub Killer Plus provides a quick solution, as it contains the proprietary active ingredient Dylox, which works faster than any other grub killer on the market.

In fact, grubs usually stop feeding and start to die within 24 hours. It also kills mole crickets, sod webworms and cutworms.

All Bayer Advanced products carry a money-back guarantee. Visit www.bayer-advanced.com or call 877-BAYERAG for more information.

Multifamily home sales ease

Sales of multifamily homes fell across Massachusetts for the first time in five years in 2005, declining 15.1 percent over the past year from a record 9,401 sales in 2004 to 7,930 last year, according to data compiled by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The slowdown is due to escalating property values, rising energy prices and higher vacancy rates brought on by a steady increase in condo conversions and multi-family housing construction in recent years that has softened demand among investors and made the market less attractive to first-time buyers.

"The multifamily housing market has experienced record demand over the past three years and that's led to strong price appreciation, but also priced others out of the market," said MAR President David Wluka of Wluka Real Estate in Sharon.

"Entry-level buyers have come to find that duplexes and triple-deckers are no longer the affordable starter home option they once were, while investors have started to look to other less costly markets, outside the region, to buy," he added.

Regionally, every area of the state saw a decrease in two to four family home sales in 2005, with a modest decline of two to four percent reported in southern and western parts of the commonwealth. Seven to ten percent declines have been observed in Barnstable County (Cape Cod) and greater Boston, while declines in excess of the 15 percent drop in statewide sales volume occurring elsewhere.

"In some sectors, the market has become overvalued, and with rents down and vacancy rates up due to a surge in condo conversions in recent years, it's not surprising to see that demand has softened over the past year," Wluka noted.

Nonetheless, despite the slower sales pace last year, the number of two to four family homes sold in 2005 was the third highest in state history, exceeded only by the 9,401 multifamily homes sold in 2004 and the 8,086 homes sold in 2003.

Further evidence that demand for multifamily properties remains historically strong is visible in the median selling price data found in the MAR report. During the past year, the statewide median selling price for two to four family homes rose sharply by nearly 17 1/2 percent, increasing from a median price of $315,000 in 2004 to $369,900 in 2005.

Regionally, median selling prices increased 14 to 15 percent in greater Boston and the Northeast region, 18 to 19 percent in the South Shore and Southeastern Massachusetts, 21 percent in Worcester County, 37 percent in Barnstable County and 43 percent in the western part of the state.

The rate of price appreciation in the multifamily market outpaced the annual price gains in the detached single-family and condominium markets last year.

Rustic meets modern in compact Adkins

By Associated Designs

Its covered porch and shutters give the compact Adkins the look of a traditional farm-style home, but the interior is entirely up to date. Kitchen, dining room and living room flow together, creating a feeling of openness, with nine-foot ceilings adding to the sense of volume.

Standing at the sink, you face out across a large patio, accessed through sliding glass doors in the dining room's window bay. A large work island increases available counter space, and laundry appliances are mere steps away, in a utility room with cabinets over the appliances. The small powder room is handy to any area of the main floor, and equally close to the garage.

A gas fireplace serves as a focal point in the living room. An arched opening there sets the boundary between that and the dining room. To the left of the central stairway is a den, which would be an ideal location for the family computer, a home entertainment center, or a home office.

Bedrooms and a large bonus room are upstairs. The Adkins' owners' suite has a walk-in closet and private bathroom. Amenities include a glass-enclosed soaking tub with shower, double vanity, and built-in bench. Pocket doors provide privacy.

Two linen closets nestle into alcoves in the hallway close to a bathroom that will be shared by the people who live in the other two bedrooms. This bathroom has a combined tub and shower.

The Adkins' bonus room has a cross-shaped central space with a 9-foot ceiling that slopes down toward the corners. Dormer windows on two sides could be outfitted with cozy window seats.

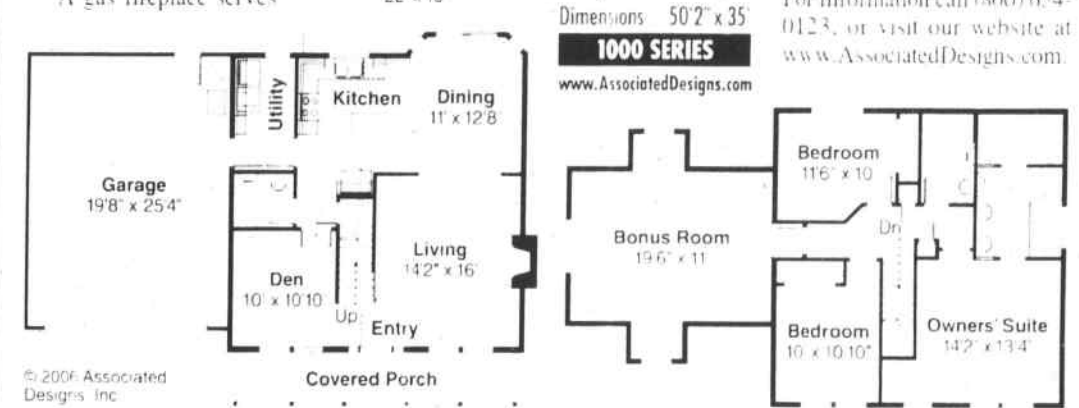

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $25 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, OR 97402. The actors and director Wolfgang Petersen know it and decide to have fun with it.

The story's simple enough - a rogue wave hits a cruise ship packed with passengers playing poker, listening to Fergie from the Black Eyed Peas (she plays the role of a lounge singer), and celebrating New Year's Eve. The wave strikes, the ship turns over, and now what's supposed to be the floor becomes the ceiling and the only way out is through the bottom of the ship.

A small group decides to disobey the Captain's orders and leave the ballroom in search of a way off the doomed ship. While everyone else remains inside the supposedly safe ballroom, 10 strike out on their own.

The cast (including Kurt Russell, Emmy Rossum, Josh Lucas, Richard Dreyfuss, Jacinda Barrett, Mike Vogel, Kevin Dillon, Mia Maestro, Jimmy Bennett and Freddy Rodriguez) should all be applauded for getting into the spirit of the film and putting their lives on the line to give audiences an adrenaline-pumping treat. The effects are all first-rate and there's a decent amount of armrest-clenching moments.

"MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE III"
GRADE: ***

The Mission Impossible franchise is the perfect summer film because of its two strong suits: exotic locales and enormous explosions, usually tied in with some eye-popping stunts as well.

Mission: Impossible III has its own mission, to open up the popcorn-movie season, and it pulls it off beautifully.

Tom Cruise's Ethan Hunt performs feats of agility and toughness, whether defending the Chesapeake Bay Bridge from missile assault or swinging like Tarzan between Shanghai skyscrapers, or a helicopter chase through a German wind farm.

Director J.J. Abrams (best known for his work on television's spy show Alias and Lost) is a self-professed fan of the television show, and it shows. He even inserts a romantic plotline involving Hunt's kidnapped wife, usually a no-no for a macho action flick like this.

The bar for on-screen villains has been set a little higher after Philip Seymour Hoffman's performance in this one, who is hell-bent on hurting Hunt after he dangles Hoffman out of a plane during another mission to save the world. Nothing is as it seems, and there are traitors everywhere, including in the IMF system itself.

The summer movie season has arrived, and this one is difficult to top as far as action end visuals go.

(Treasurer-Tax Collector Brian Curtin and Town Administrator Robert Mercier were present), who advised us this was the best way to go."

"The chairman explained the issuance of the bonds is contingent upon reimbursement from the state School Building Assistance Bureau (SBAB)...."

'Well crafted' (Wakefield)

"As we began the new school year back in September 2005, one major focus for this year was revising our strategic plan, assessing the status of our plan and determining the need for change, if any," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The current plan, which was developed in 2000, incorporated several goals and covered a period of five years. As with all strategic plans, the need to review and revise is essential.

"Over the past ten to fifteen years, the strategic planning became a common practice within school systems. In an attempt to establish clear goals over a predetermined timeframe, school department personnel drafted and adopted these plans to work toward and to accomplish district successes.

"A strategic plan is simply a well-crafted set of goals with clearly defining objectives for each goal within a specific timeframe, outlining budget implications and often, with pre-determined measurable results.

"A committee comprised of representatives from as wide a constituency of the district as possible facilitated by one individual who is experienced in group dynamics, planning, goal development and group decision making generally is the format in which a strategic plan is developed.

"In November 2005, responding to a public invitation by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Maynard Suffredini, Jr., a committee of thirty volunteers representing teachers, administrators, clerical staff, students, parents and community personnel facilitated by Dr. Suffredini convened to commence work on reviewing the existing strategic plan and to make recommendations for revision of a new plan. "Following the establishment of the committee's task and after considerable group discussions, subcommittees were formed to specifically focus on the various needs of the school district.

"Subcommittees were formed to address several areas including Student Achievement, Technology, and Facilities.

"Goal areas emerged from the subgroups and became officially known as Goal One Student Achievement, Goal Two Technology and Goal Three Facility Planning.

"Within each of these goals are several objectives critical to achieving the goal. Also, the Committee-at-Large voted unanimously to adopt a newly drafted Mission Statement.
